British Fliers Tell How Aerial Torpedoes Smashed Italian Fleet

ABOARD A BATTLESHIP OF THE BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET OFF TARANTO, Nov. 14 (AP)—Navy bombing planes swooped in the moonlight into the heart of Taranto's inner defenses Monday night, flinging torpedoes and high-explosive bombs at sides and decks of warships, and the pilots said they left one great battleship aflame and two others beached or half submerged.

Sheets of flame leaped from the 35,000-ton Littorio, which the Italians have called the fastest warship in the world.

Pilots said fires burst from the other damaged battleships, both of the 23,622-ton Cavour class.

Air reconnaissance after the attack brought back the word that one Cavour was "half under water," the other beached to prevent sinking and the Littorio still burning.

More torpedoes, the pilots said, smashed against the sides of two cruisers and two fleet auxiliaries.

The naval bombers and torpedo planes swept off the aircraft carrier Illustrious and then power-dived into Taranto's inner harbor.

The fliers said their projectiles were launched almost point blank against the warships; that the Italians were caught completely by surprise, with most of the crews apparently ashore. Anti-aircraft resistance was described as "feeble."

The entire harbor was likened to a great sheet of flame. Some of the bombs fell on the suspension bridge linking the upper and lower basin, and it made a fiery arch over the blazing docks.

NAZIS, REDS IN DEAL FOR WORLD LOOT

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, Nov. 14 (AP)—Adolf Hitler and Soviet Premier Molotoff have agreed upon a Russian sphere of interest lying generally between Japan's far-eastern sphere and Europe and Africa, which Rome and Berlin have allotted to themselves, sources usually in the know divulged today after Molotoff had started for home.

With the exception of European Russia and Turkey, all of Europe and Africa will stand under the leadership of the Axis creators, Germany and Italy, these persons said.

Official confirmation of this was unobtainable, since the Wilhelmstrasse has made it plain that nothing will be said beyond this noon's communique, which stated that Germany and Russia have reached "a mutual accord on all important questions of interest" to both.

Boiled down, the reported outcome of the Hitler-Molotoff talks seems to indicate that Germany, Italy and Japan will not interfere with Russia if Russia does not interfere with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo tripie alliance—in other words, a mutual "hands off" agreement.—Editor's note.

POINTS IN AGREEMENT

Inquiries in quarters which always prove reliable on matters of foreign policy developed this picture:

1—Russia will have her "grossraum," or vast space of domination, just as the Axis and Japan arranged to have theirs by the terms of the three-power pact they signed on Sept. 27.

2—This "grossraum" will not be created at the expense of parties not involved in the present European conflict. In other words, no further slice will be taken out of Finland nor will the Dardanelles be taken from Turkey, provided she behaves in a matter not inimical to the Axis and Russia.

TURKEY MUST FALL IN

3—Turkey must make up her mind definitely and finally anent her place in the future scheme of things. Germany, Italy and Russia all feel confident that Turkey will, in due time, seek an anschloss with the totalitarian powers.

If any further argument is needed to convince Turkey where

RAF BLASTS ITALIAN DOCKS; NEW AIR OFFENSIVE SPREADS

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)—From hard-hit Taranto, at the tip of Italy, to Berlin the Royal Air Force's bombers struck last night, pressing home the offensive which the British say has crippled half of Mussolini's battleships and given the Empire's combined sea-air power prestige throughout the world.

At Taranto, where three battleships and four other warcraft of Italy's hoarded battle fleet were reported crippled by naval torpedo planes flying in from the aircraft carriers Eagle and Illustrious Monday night, planes of the RAF bomber command followed up.

The ministry of information said they had successfully attacked both harbor and docks, and that all returned to their base (perhaps Malta or Crete).

In Berlin, British bombs burst in answer to Hitler's newest stroke of diplomacy. They gave Russia's Premier Molotoff his first taste of what an air raid is like. Moreover, the air ministry said that the raiders bombed a railway station, freight yards and other objectives in mid-Berlin, despite miserable flying weather.

NEW TARANTO ATTACK

There was evidence, too, of aggressive British preparation for defense of Far Eastern bases and possessions.

An air marshal, Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, was made commander-in-chief in the Far East with headquarters in Singapore and it was disclosed that reinforcements had reached British bastions in the Orient.

Few details were available on the new attack on Taranto, a brief communique saying:

"Information officially received in London shows that a successful attack was made by RAF bombers last (Wednesday) night on the docks and harbors at Taranto. All our aircraft returned safely."

Italy issued a denial of British claims that half the Fascist capital ship strength was disabled, declaring the report was fantastic.—Editor's note.

ITALIANS RUSH AID TO ALBANIA

ATHENS, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Italians were reported today to be withdrawing large numbers of troops from the Yugoslav frontier and speeding them to southern Albania in an attempt to halt the Greek advance in that sector.

The shift in the Italian troop masses was regarded as an indication not only that the Italians are on the defensive but that the British and Greek air attacks on the Italian naval base at Taranto and other Italian and Albanian bases had held up the transport of reinforcements from the Italian mainland.

A wounded Greek captain today told how 20,000 of Italy's finest mountaineer troops who marched gaily into Greece on Oct. 28 were cut to pieces and routed by a comparative handful of 2000 Greeks in an eight-day battle which began on the 30th.

The captain, 37-year-old Panos Kyriakou, propped up in a hospital bed to tell his Homeric tale, said his men toiled 54 miles through the Pindus mountains in a continual downpour of rain for two days to make victorious contact with the invaders.

"The encounter took place on Oct. 30 in the early morning on Mt. Goumari, a peak 5900 feet high, west of Mt. Smolika and six kilometers (about 3¾ miles) northeast of the town of Samarini.

"The Italian forces consisted of the Third Alpini Division, two battalions of Bersaglieri, two battalions of Grenadiers and two independent companies, supported by mountain artillery, 19 howitzers, 12 machine guns to each battalion, automatic rifles and a multitude of other equipment of all descriptions.

"They were marching in four

Nazis Claim 8 Ships Destroyed

BERLIN, Nov. 14 (AP)—Destruction of eight British merchant ships, five of them by one submarine and the rest by bombing planes, was claimed today by the high command in continuation of Germany's intensified campaign against vital British shipping. Severe damage to another vessel was reported.

The time and place of the submarine's forays were not disclosed by the high command communique, but the sinking of 28,840 tons of freight vessels was reported. In still another attack, 225 miles west of Ireland, a long-range bomber sank a 6000-ton vessel, the communique asserted.

F.D. Increases FHA Mortgages a Billion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (INS)—President Roosevelt today increased by one billion dollars the amount of home mortgages which may be insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

In an exchange of letters, both the President and Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones praised the "remarkable record" FHA Administrator Stewart McDonald had made in insuring mortgages up to the hitherto three billion dollar limit.

Bride in Cambridge Kidnaped, Attacked

A 21-year-old Simmons graduate, bride of a Harvard Law School student, was kidnaped by a man at gunpoint, forced to drive to Spot Pond, tied up, and then attacked, Cambridge police reported today.

Attractive, brunette Mrs. Jeanne Gautier Earle of Everett st., Cambridge, married only a few months to Richard Tillman Earle, Jr., of St. Petersburg, Fla., was the victim.

Bravely she retraced the route of her forced trip with police inspectors and in Half-Mile rd., Stoneham, they found a piece of the rope with which her assailant had tied her hands and legs.

Then she collapsed and was taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital where she may have to remain for several days.

BRIDE TELLS STORY

Her own story, according to Cambridge police, was:

"I had just left Richard (her husband) in our apartment to go to a nearby store and do an errand and had told him I was going to put the car in the garage afterwards.

"I was at the wheel of the car and had started it when a young man opened the right hand door and asked me if I knew where a certain street was—I don't remember what street he said.

"He was tall, about five feet ten inches, and I should say he weighed around 140 pounds. I know he had a long, thin face and wore a dark, soft hat. That's the only way I could describe him.

"I told him I didn't know where the street he asked about was, but then he suddenly jumped in the seat beside me.

USES BLACK PISTOL

"I started to scream, but felt something pressed into my side. It was a small black pistol. I was too terrified to do anything for a minute.

"'Start going fast and don't say anything to anyone if you want to live,' he told me.

"I started and he directed me through Cambridge, Somerville, out into the Fellsway and around

Formal announcement of the engagement of Eileen Gillespie, Newport and New York socialite, to John J. Slocum, Harvard graduate, was expected to be made today by her mother, Mrs. Lawrence Gillespie. The marriage will unite two of America's oldest and most distinguished families.

New Love Is Found By Eileen Gillespie

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 14—Six years after her engagement to John Jacob Astor, III, ended in a quarrel that rocked society, pretty Eileen S. S. Gillespie, of Newport and New York, today was looking forward to marriage with the scion of another of America's first families.

Formal announcement of Eileen's engagement to John Jermain Slocum, son of Herbert Jermain Slocum of Charleston, S. C., and heir to a $2,000,000 fortune, will be made shortly by her mother, Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, of New York.

John Slocum

Eileen returned young Astor's $250,000 engagement ring in 1934 after they quarreled at a party. The wedding was to have taken place in a few weeks in New York.

Astor married Ellen Tuck French of Dedham a few months later on his return from a world cruise. Miss French was one of the debutantes chosen by Eileen as a bridesmaid.

Young Slocum was graduated from Harvard in 1936 and was a member of the Hasty Pudding, Phoenix and Signet Clubs. He is a descendant of Myles Standish, while Miss Gillespie's family dates back to Roger Williams of colonial fame.

Sentenced In Theft From Girl

Bruce Ellis, 26, son of a Greenfield banker, pleaded guilty in Lynn court today to larceny of $530 from a 21-year-old orphan girl, but he promised restitution and the court gave him a six-month suspended sentence and probation.

The girl was not present in court, but police told Judge Ralph W. Reeve her story.

She is Lena Evans, 21, a waitress in a Portsmouth, N. H., restaurant.

Ellis, a magazine salesman, was trapped because he registered for the draft in Burlington, Vt., months after it all happened. Police had been hunting him vainly.

Miss Evans said she had been in an auto accident and had collected a large sum of money before she met Ellis in Boston last July.

She said she went with him to race tracks, betting her money, before he sought a loan.

Its purpose, the girl told inspectors, was to start a dude ranch in Long Island, N. Y.

Ellis, she said, explained that he had funds in a bank at Tampa, Fla. He gave her a check for $200.

Then, according to her story, he borrowed $330. When she tried to cash the first check it came back marked "no funds." She complained to police. Ellis had vanished.

When he registered for the draft police found his home address in Greenfield and arrested him there.

Rain Keeps On, Cold On Way

The rain that has deluged Boston for two days, causing thousands of dollars' worth of damage, will continue until about noon tomorrow, the weather bureau announced today.

Then there will be a sharp fall in temperature as a cold wave that brought a 22 below zero reading at Dickinson, N. D., moves eastward.

Automobile accidents, minor ship disasters, sunken streets and clogged gutters were reported in the wake of the rain and windstorm that held all New England in its grip.

GUN HUNT, NOTES STIR HALL TRIAL

Search of a witness for a gun and the reading of three endearing letters which were nearly sprinkled with tears marked today's session of the Hall alienation of affections trial in superior court.

In the suit, Walter S. Hall, Boston bank clerk and dance hall attache, charges Dr. Adam E. Cole of Swampscott with stealing the love of Mrs. Margaret Kelley Hall, former private switchboard operator and one-time beauty prize winner.

Mrs. Margaret Hall

When today's session opened before Judge Jesse M. Morton and the jury, Robert J. Curran, counsel for Hall, called Thomas C. O'Brien, counsel for the doctor, to the bench where they conferred.

MAN IS SEARCHED

Then O'Brien left the bench and beckoned to a court officer. They went over to a witness in the case, talked for less than a minute, and next the three went out into the corridor.

There, while the witness laughed through the procedure, the court officer searched him, loking, he said, for a gun. None was found, however, and the three went back into the courtroom.

Then Hall resumed the witness stand, again under cross-examination by O'Brien, whose first subject was the blonde, Mrs. Golden, who first bobbed up in the trial yesterday.

Hall testified that she used to work on the switchboard at the Atlantic National Bank and that her maiden name was Viola Helrick. Later, he said, she became Mrs Emery, and then Mrs. Golden.

NOT IN HIS APARTMENT

Asked if she was in his apartment on the night of March 14, 1938, Hall replied with a denial.

Then O'Brien asked the witness if he had a notation in his notebook regarding the night of May 7, 1938, and Hall replied that he had.

"I met my wife," he said, "after

Ellis (right) is shown with Inspectors Jos. M. Gannon and Frank Lawlor who brought him to Lynn from Greenfield.

8 Draft Rebels Given Year-and-a-Day Terms

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Eight theological students who refused to register for selective service were sentenced in federal court today to serve a year and a day in a federal prison to be designated by the Attorney-General.

The students were "conscientious objectors" from the Union Theological Seminary. When they were indicted Oct. 21 for refusing to register in compliance with the selective training and service act they pleaded guilty.

The court accepted U. S. Atty. John T. Cahill's recommendation for sentence, while noting that the maximum term possible was five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum said that if at any time within the period imposed the defendants decide to comply with the act the court would be "only too happy" to moderate the sentences.

Those sentenced were:

Richard J. Wichlel, 23, of Binghamton, N. Y., a graduate of Syracuse University; William N. Lovell, 26, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., who was president of the Union Theological Student body and is a graduate of Yale; Donald Benedict, 23, of Newark, N. Y., Albion College graduate; David Dellinger, 25, of Wakefield, Mass., Yale graduate; Meredith Dallas, 23, of Grosse Point, Mich., Albion graduate; George M. Houser, 24, of Denver, Col., University of Denver graduate; Joseph G. Bevilacqua, 24, of Buffalo, N. Y., Tufts College graduate, and Howard E. Spragg, 23, of Malden, Mass., also a Tufts graduate.

NAVY O.K., SEC. KNOX TELLS N.E.

"The United States Navy is strongest in the world today—and thank God it's ready!"

This was the message delivered by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox to New England governors, business executives and defence committee heads today at the opening session of the 16th New England conference at the Hotel Statler.

Knox warned his hearers that "dark and menacing days face us now."

"I'm going to talk realities," he said. "The outlook is pretty grim. If any of you think the next five or six years will be anything like the past five or six, you are doomed to disappointment.

"The next five years will be a test of our endurance. They will be unlike any five years in U. S. history.

"We all must be prepared to make sacrifices if we're going to make this country safe. b

"Profit-making is normally the primary concern of business. But profits must become secondary now.

"We are witnessing the most savage and relentless war the world has ever seen.

"Abraham Lincoln called the Civil War an 'irreconcilable' conflict.

"Far more irreconcilable is the present conflict between the totalitarian powers and the surviving democracies. It must be fought to a finish if world progress is to continue.

"England alone survives in Europe. And without detracting from the heroism and gallantry of the Royal Air Force, the fact remains that England's real protection is the 27 miles of open water between her shores and the Continent.

BIG NAVY NEEDED

"Thanks to the Royal Navy, that has proved an impassable barrier to Nazi invaders.

"We have a greater barrier, the wide Atlantic and Pacific. And to maintain this safeguard, we need a navy able to withstand any enemy or combination of enemies."

Newest weapon of the totalitarian powers is "organized treachery," Knox said.

Our defense against this must be "unparalleled unity," he declared.

Such unity, he said, will keep disloyal and foreign-inspired minorities from daring to raise their heads.

Our aid to Britain, according to the speaker, should be the "utmost possible without leaving our own nation defenceless."

URGES AID TO CHINA

Aid to China, he said, should be "second only to aid to Great Britain."

He predicted imminent Axis drives against Gibraltar and Egypt and Britain's Mediterranean lifeline.

New England Governors and Governors-elect made addresses, calling for national unity for defense, coupled with vigilance against misdirected expenditures and efforts.

Gov. Saltonstall urged "unity through the principle of human equality, not through relationship of mastery and submission."

Such unity, he said, will preserve an "unconquerable America."

NEW GUN EXPLAINED—R. E. Flanders, president of the N. E. Council, learns about the Johnson gun from Col. E. M. Ayers of Hartford at National Defense Exhibit, Hotel Statler.

Gov. Lewis O. Barrows of Maine, cautioned against misuse of defense zeal to further "pet projects," such as the St. Lawrence waterway development.

"It would be hard to convince the people of New England that the St. Lawrence project has any merit whatever as a defense measure, yet it is easy to imagine that others may so regard it,' he said.

Ralph E. Flanders, newly elected president of the New England Council, declared unemployment throughout the U. S. ought to be reduced "to the vanishing point" by national defense work.

A nationally prominent Springfield, Vt., machine tool manufacturer and a member of William S. Knudsen's national defense co-ordination committee, Flanders warned U. S. industry that "we must bring new men—the unemployed—into the defense program, instead of shifting the work of those already employed."

U. S. PROBES NAZI FREEING OF CASH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Huge disbursements of Nazi cash in the United States were being investigated today by agents of both the Federal Bureau of Investigation and of the Dies Committee.

As of July 15, Germany had investments which totaled more than $202,000,000.

Now more than $25,000,000 of this has been turned into cash.

What the cash is being used for and why the decision to liquidate the holdings is the question puzzling officials here.

There was some speculation that the Nazis were afraid that the U. S. might freeze German assets as it has the assets of Poland, Belgium, Netherlands and Norway, nations which the Hitler war machine has overrun.

There was, however, no indication from Treasury circles such a step was to be made against Germany herself.

The decline of $25,000,000 in credits in such a short time took place in accounts of two groups.

One is in the names of German private individuals, the other in names of Nazi officials and employes.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and investigators of the Dies Committee have been seeking to determine whether the liquidated funds are being used for purposes inimical to the U. S., it was learned.

Upkeep and increased personnel of Nazi consulate and diplomatic staffs might account for the need of cash, they speculated.

While the question is still unanswered, a report was circulating in financial circles that orders had been received from Berlin for all debts owed American firms be paid.

Roxbury Mother 1st Food Stamp Buyer

First sale of federal food stamps in Boston was made today to a Roxbury mother of four. Her pathetic story of trying to house, clothe and feed her family on a weekly welfare allowance of $10.21 won the sympathy of Mayor Tobin.

The mayor opened the stamp sale at Whittier st., Roxbury, welfare headquarters in the presence of federal, state and city officials.

It is estimated that the food stamp plan will bring $2,000,000 worth of new business to Boston provision stores and groceries and will mean a 50 per cent increase of rations for 30,000 welfare families.

In the first four hours of today's stamp sale, purchases totalled in excess of $2500.

MAYOR'S FIRST CUSTOMER

Welfare recipients pay cash for yellow stamps, good for exchange for any sort of food, and receive half as many blue stamps, exchangeable for a long and varying list of surplus commodities.

Mayor Tobin's first food stamp customer was Mrs. Laura Langley of Whitney st., Roxbury. She was accompanied by her daughter, Dolores, three and a half.

"I have five children in all," Mrs. Langley told the mayor. "My oldest girl, Genevieve, is sick in a hospital.

"Elizabeth, 11, is also an invalid, recovering from a broken arm and leg. The others are Pat, 7, and Dolores.

"I get $10.21 a week, out of which I have to pay $4.50 rent, 50 cents for electricity and 6 cents a quart for milk.

"It works out that I have only $2.25 for my weekly food budget for the five of us."

Tabed by Mrs. Langley's story, Mayor Tobin paid for a $2 book of stamps for her out of his own pocket.

Another handed him $3 from her welfare check and received a total of $5 in yellow stamps and $2.50 in blue stamps.

"I'll celebrate by having meat for supper tonight," she said, seeming to be fighting back her tears.

MOTHER "SPLURGES"

Among early purchaser of stamps at the Roxbury welfare office was Mrs. Mabel Gardner of Norfolk ave., Roxbury.

She has two children, Marjorie, two and a half, and Joan, six, she said.

Reporters present chipped in $1 to enable her to buy $4 worth of yellow stamps and receive $2 worth of the free blue stamps.

At a nearby chain store she made her first food stamp investment, buying a dozen cooking eggs, four cans of milk, two cans of tomatoes, two loaves of bread and half a pound each of bacon and butter. She also "splurged" by buying a quarter of a pound of cookies for the children.

Greatest sale of the food stamps today was in Dorchester and East Boston, where district welfare offices were issuing weekly pay checks.

PAYROLLS STAGGERED

Tomorrow will be relief check day in Brighton, Hyde Park, Whittier st., Roxbury, and Fayette st., South End.

Meantime, 1000 soldiers' relief recipients throughout Boston were being paid off yesterday and today, enabling them to purchase stamps at their local welfare offices.

WPA employes, representing 9000 families, will have a payday Monday and Tuesday.

Staggered welfare payrolls in various sections of the city were expected to prevent a general rush for the new food stamps while keeping the sales steadily booming.

No tobacco or liquor will be exchanged for stamps, nor food to be eaten on the premises.

Mayor Tobin paid $141,000 for 564,000 orange stamps and received 282,000 blue stamps free. The latter is the government's gift to consume surplus products and thus aid farmers.

10 STAMP STATIONS

Maj. Arthur A. Atkinson is federal administrator of the plan in Boston. The 10 stations where stamps will be placed on sale today follows:

East Boston—Public welfare office, 151 Maverick st.
Charlestown—Public welfare office, 75 High st.
North and West Ends—Health unit, 25 Blossom st.
South End—Welfare office, 43 Fayette st.
Brighton—Welfare office, 321 Washington st.
Jamaica Plain—Hillside school, Elm st.
West Roxbury and Hyde Park—Municipal building, 1175 River st., Hyde Park.
Dorchester—Welfare office, 170 Hancock st.
Roxbury—Health unit, 20 Whittier st.
South Boston—Cahill building, 838 Summer st.

U. S. SEEKS TENANTS

William J. Johnson, manager of the federal housing project at Charlestown, announced today he would begin interviewing applicants for apartments there next week.

HARVARD MAN FIRED BY R.O.T.C.

Climaxing an investigation by army officials, Dale H. Maple, a Harvard senior from Middletown, Ct., was dropped today from the Harvard Unit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Just a month ago he was expelled as a member of the Harvard German Club, with an announcement by George Farwell, president, that Maple's pro-Hitler and pro-Nazi outbursts were disrupting the club, which disapproves of the Reich and all it stands for.

Maple was informed today of the R. D. T. C. action against him in a letter from Col. Henry D. Day, U. S. A., professor of military science and tactics at the university. The student, who held an officer's rank in the corps, would make only this comment:

Dale H. Maple

"I have nothing to say, but I do feel that the whole matter has been distorted."

According to Col. Jay the investigation of Maple was handled by the War Department.

His action, the colonel stated, had been taken after a thorough investigation has convinced him that Maple was "not fit material for an officer."

Maj. George F. Wooley, Jr., assistant to Col. Jay, said:

"The action means that Maple is dismissed from the Harvard unit, but that does not mean that he will be exempt from serving in the United States Army, unless the War Department wishes to take that action."

The student was taking his third year of military science and will keep his uniform, it was said at the college.

Also it was declared that no action against him is planned by the college authorities and that he will be allowed to graduate with his class in June.

Boston to Get Fair Elephant

The elephant which has stolen thousands of children's hearts in circus parades and at the New York World's Fair was ready today to make the Franklin Park Zoo her new home.

She's Topsy, the gentle, ambling creature that in 25 years with the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus has brought children leaping to their feet as she led the parade in the Big Top.

WAIT APPROVAL

Only approval by Park Commissioner William P. Long is needed before Frank Buck, the wild animal trainer, sends Topsy away from the deserted World's Fair ground to the zoo.

Hearing of the death of Waddy a week ago, Buck decided that Topsy at the age of 45 had paraded long enough and would make a fine companion for Dutch and Hazel at the Zoo here.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

By golly, it's so!

TESTIMONIAL by a HARD-BOILED AD WRITER

Wrinkleproof claims for neckwear are a dime a dozen. It's either a trick lining, bias cutting, or some such stuff. So when they trotted in these ties, I was leery. Well, I wore one every day for a week. At night, I'd tighten the knot and hang a bookend on the long end to keep it tight. After seven days of this punishment I untied it—smoothed it with a stroke of my hand—and doggone if I could find a wrinkle anywhere! ★ My leaky fountain pen did the trick to prove that spotproof claim. A dash of warm water and soap—and those blobs of ink vanished instantly. Unbelievable? Try it yourself. ★ The secret of all this tie magic is a new blend of Fiberglas (spun glass) and rich silk. FEDERAL BANK GETS DEERY CLAIM ORDER

On a basis of slightly more than 4 cents on the dollar, Judge Hugh D. McClellan, in Federal court today, authorized Receiver Frederick S. Deitrick of the closed Federal National Bank to dispose of assets and compromise a claim.

The claim is against John A. Deery, former president of the Salem Trust Co., an affiliate of the Federal National.

The total amount involved in Judge McLellan's order, filed with the clerk of federal district court, is $865,436.54 and the order provides:

That Deitrock is authorized, as herein limited, and for a consideration of not less than $35,000, to assign to the Naumkeag Amusement Co., or its nominee, but wholly without warranty or any recourse—

(a) A judgment of $203,017.26 against Deery, rendered Feb. 8, 1934, including any execution on two notes made by Deery and three notes by Deery brothers, a partnership.

(b) A judgment of $53,676.76 against Deery, rendered Feb. 2, 1934, including any execution thereon, on a stock assessment.

(c) Two notes, each in the principal amount of $5,633.37, made by Naumkeag Amusement Co., together with security.

(d) A $200,000 insurance policy on the life of Deery, being subject to a $50,000 policy loan from the insurer.

Also, to covenant not to sue on, or enforce against Deery, his personal representatives or assigns, a judgment of $402,969.16 against Deery, Theodore M. Logan and Daniel C. Mullooney.

Egypt Premier Dies Reading King's Speech

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 14 (AP)—Egyptian Premier Hassan Sabry Pasha collapsed and died today as he was reading King Farouk's speech from the throne at the opening session of parliament.

Strangely, the words of the speech was much the same as those Sabry Pasha used in his first statement as new head of the government last July.

Then he said:

"Egypt, who is anxious to maintain her integrity and independence is equally anxious to fulfill her obligations toward her great ally Britain and to carry out her alliance of friendship in the letter and spirit."

Doctor Tells of New Type of Pneumonia

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 14—A new type of pneumonia caused by a virus instead of bacteria, was described today before the annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association.

Heretofore pneumonia was believed due entirely to one or more of 33 specific types of the pneumococcus bacteria, but Dr. Warfield T. Longcope of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., declared that the new type of the disease, which is sometimes fatal, cannot be attributed to any of these.

It is an insidious form of the disease, he said, because it may develop for as long as three weeks with a dry cough, irregular fever sometimes high fever, blueness of the skin and nausea before a chest examination reveals true pneumonia.

The disease is highly contagious, Dr. Longcope declared, many cases having occurred among nurses physicians and medical students working among infected patients.

Neither sulfapyridine or sulfathiazole, the two drugs which have markedly reduced the pneumonia death rate during the past two years, is effective against the "X" or virus type of the disease, he added.

U.S. FOOD STAMP PLAN

TO MARKET SURPLUS FARM PRODUCTS - - -

TODAY, Nov. 14 the Federal Government's new Food Stamp Plan to market surplus farm commodities went into effect in Boston. The Stamp Plan was inaugurated to give the farmer a greater return for his products, and to assure better nutritional balance of food to the families that have been directly provided with surplus foods by the Federal Marketing Administration. It replaces, in Boston, the method by which the government made purchases of surplus foods and gave them direct to the needy from local commisaries.

ORANGE STAMPS may be used at any accredited store to purchase any Food normally bought for human consumption at home.

BLUE STAMPS may be used only to purchase the surplus foods designated by the Department of Agriculture.

EVERYONE, whether eligible to buy food stamps or not, should be interested in this new Stamp Plan, for it is smart and thrifty to watch for and buy the foods that are listed as surplus (Blue stamp items). They represent outstanding values. Buy these surplus foods and get more for your money whether you use food stamps or cash.

BLUE STAMPS are acceptable the same as money for purchase of foods on the "Surplus" list, as shown below, in every First National Store in the City of Boston.

The user of both the Orange and Blue Stamps at our stores chooses merchandise from our regular stocks, the same high quality at economical prices that distinguishes all First National food. BLUE STAMPS mean that the families who receive them are enabled to have more food on the table—more nourishment —than they otherwise would.

For further particulars consult your local First National Store manager, or consult the Boston Surplus Food Committee announcement on opposite page. He will gladly explain the use of the stamp plan and see that you get the best values.

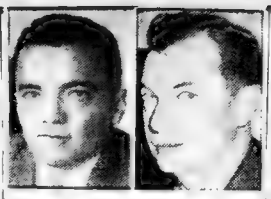
DEAL BRAIN TRUST PLANS JOB SHIFTS



J. Edgar Hoover Robt. T. Jackson

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The "inner circle" of the New Deal, flushed with their part in President Roosevelt's third-term victory, are drafting an ambitious program of political activity in hopes of forcing sweeping changes in the Administration, it was learned today.

This New Deal faction, headed by the "brain-trust twins"—Thomas G. Corcoran and Benjamin Cohen—would like to see:

1—A new department of aviation created, with Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York city as the secretary of aviation.

2—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson retire, so that Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson can be promoted to the cabinet.

3—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes retire, so that Atty.-Gen. Robert H. Jackson can be promoted to head the Supreme Court.

4—The "smear" campaign resumed against FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in hopes he can be forced into retirement and a good New Dealer named to head his vast organization.

AIM AT KENNEDY

The proposal to create a new department of aviation has many ramifications. The New Deal strategists now are talking of giving the proposed new cabinet member control over all civil aviation and the entire war plane procurement program.

This would take civil aviation from the Department of Commerce and final word on war plane construction from the National Defense Commission.

The plan is aimed indirectly at Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Britain, who is expected to retire from that post shortly and who—the strategists believe—may become chairman of the National Defense Commission. The Corcoran-Cohen group have been major political enemies of Kennedy for years.

POST FOR LAGUARDIA

Appointment of LaGuardia to the proposed new Cabinet post would be a reward for his political activity in behalf of President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Many observers have credited LaGuardia's American Labor Party with swinging New York state to the Roosevelt banner in 1936 and 1940. Rumors long have prevailed in Washington that LaGuardia will enter the Cabinet, either in the war or labor post, but these have been denied from time to time at the White House. LaGuardia, incidentally, was an aviator in the World War and hence has had a personal contact with aviation.

The War Department change is advocated by the "inner circle" be cause they dislike Stimson. Patterson, on the other hand, is a Harvard graduate, one of the "Frankfurter boys" who studied under Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter when the latter taught law at the Cambridge institution.

HUGHES DRIVE ON

The Cohen-Corcoran faction already have started a campaign to embarrass Chief Justice Hughes. Opening shots were fired last week in "planted" stories, forecasting his early retirement.

Friends of Hughes say he has never been in finer physical condition and never more desirous of staying on as head of the nation's highest court.

The "tip" is out, though, that a major campaign is to be directed at Hughes' health, age and economic views, in hopes of forcing him to quit. Jackson is the natural New Deal choice as his successor.

The campaign against Hoover is scheduled to be resumed within a few weeks. A previous campaign ended with Hoover on top but the "inner circle" still hopes to force his retirement.

U.S. Pushes Camp Job-Selling Probe

With the contractors and the commanding general of the First Army Corps Area in dispute over the progress of cantonment building, federal agents today continued their probe of alleged job selling in connection with the work.

If the charges are proved they will be presented to the federal grand jury, it was stated by U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon at Boston.

Both Army intelligence officers and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation are engaged in the investigation, it is revealed, and workers and former workers, both at Camp Edwards, Falmouth, and Fort Devens, Ayer, are being questioned.

WORKERS MAKE CHARGES

It is understood that several of the former employes on the cantonment construction projects have charged they were fired because of their refusal to pay tribute for their jobs, while other men have complained that they were refused jobs because they would have to buy them.

Disclosure of the sweeping investigation came after a verbal battle had been launched between Mayor Tobin and former Governor Curley in the matter of employment at Fort Devens.

Federal officials said, however, that this controversy has no connection with the probe.

Many men seeking work at Devens stormed the mayor's office after reading a notice on the door of the Roosevelt-Wallace Finance Committee, of which Curley is director, that a "favorably disposed" employment manager at Devens had been replaced by a man "friendly" to Mayor Tobin.

STATE SETS PACE

Meanwhile Massachusetts set the pace for the nation in military preparedness, with volunteers in place of draftees.

Even army officers admitted Ft. Devens is outfitted sufficiently to receive on Monday the vanguard of an estimated 1,000,000 New Englanders who will be added to the army through volunteering or conscription.

At Falmouth, construction officials claimed their task of converting Camp Edwards into a mammoth training camp had passed the peak and now only 13,000 of the 20,000 workmen previously employed are still needed.

C. D. Riddell, general manager of the Walsh Construction Company in charge of the job, said many essential buildings will be ready by Dec. 1, although the contract does not call for occupancy before Jan. 1.

Major-General James A. Woodruff, in a speech in Cambridge, took issue with Riddell, charging there are no barracks at the Camp yet after two months work and that everything is not proceeding according to schedule.

At Fort Devens, however, everything was in harmony, as army men waxed enthusiastic over the lay-out.

More than 1000 workmen in three shifts have streamlined the old cantonment into what many claim is the last word in army quarters.

On Monday morning, the Fort will receive the first trainees, and will accept fledgling soldiers at the rate of 1000 every 20 days.

Meanwhile, fears of families and employers over men with low draft numbers were set at ease with word from army officials that no more New England men will be inducted into service until Jan. 2 at the earliest.

Lothian Asks More U. S. Aid

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)—British sources disclosed today that Lord Lothian, British ambassador to Washington, was en route from London to Lisbon, where he was expected to meet Sir Samuel Hoare, British ambassador to Madrid.

In a message broadcast to the United States last night from London, Lord Lothian, who is on his way back to Washington, said England needs "planes, finance and ships if we are to be sure of defeating the Nazi threat to liberty."

"The next year of the war may be as dangerous, perhaps more dangerous, both to us and to you than the last," he added. "Without adequate assistance from you in the three spheres that I have described, we cannot be sure of victory."

The ambassador expressed his nation's thanks to the U. S. for aid already given.

SEARCH FOR PISTOL STIRS HALL CASE TRIAL

she told me she lived across the street from the Embassy Apartments, watching my apartment. That was the time Viola Helrick, or Mrs. Emery, came into the lobby.

"She (Mrs. Hall) accused this blonde of going into a corner with me. My wife said the blonde was Eleanor Wallace. I found that Eleanor Wallace had been away for two years. I came back and told her she must have meant Viola Helrick.

'I said to my wife, 'She worked on the switchboard with you at the Atlantic National Bank.' My wife said, 'I don't know her.'"

Q—Following these statements by your wife that you were with Viola Helrick, you wrote a letter to your wife? A—Yes.

Q—Did you call Mrs. Emery on the telephone and tell her your wife was coming down to speak to her? A—No, my wife told me that Mrs. Emery told her she was not in my apartment.

Q—Who was the blonde Mrs. Hall saw go into your apartment? A—There was no blonde.

I got a call in my room from Mr. Carey that a Mrs. Emery was downstairs in the lobby. I didn't know any Mrs. Emery. I thought it was my wife trying to frame me with some girl. I didn't know that my wife lived across the street. The Burns Detective Agency double-crossed me. Burns double-crossed me. You know who he is.

WARNED MRS. EMERY

O'Brien: "I don't know who he is."

Hall: "He worked for you when you were district attorney."

O'Brien: "I don't recall that."

Hall: "Well my memory is better than yours."

Q—Did you go to Mrs. Emery's house and warn her that Mrs. Hall was going to see her? A—I did. You refreshed my memory.

Q—All you have in your book is Dr. Cole and your wife? A—She told me to go out and get a girl—that there were plenty of single girls around. I said, 'Why doesn't Dr. Cole go out with single girls?'

Q—Did you follow her advice? A—No.

At this point three letters, identified as letters written by Hall to his wife after their estrangement and asking her to come back and live with him, were introduced.

Hall asked that O'Brien read the letters, but O'Brien said

"No, you read them."

The witness started to read the first letter, but after a few lines tears began to well in his eyes, he swallowed hard and stopped. Recovering his composure he continued and finished that letter.

With the second letter, Hall again asked O'Brien to do the reading but the lawyer again declined. This time Hall was so overcome midway in his reading that O'Brien relented and finished the other half. Then O'Brien read all of the third letter.

LETTER IS READ

The first letter, dated May 12 1936, read:

"Dear Marjorie: Please give me another trial. I will promise you anything in writing. I will try to make you happy by not nagging and bothering you, especially not to disturb your sleep.

"It is awfully lonesome here without you . . . Even your clothes and personal belongings were company to me.

"Please give up the unnecessary expense of your room and come to me. I do not blame you for anything, for whatever has happened was caused by my driving you to it. I certainly have learned a severe lesson and suffered plenty for my rotten disposition and actions toward you.

PLEADS FOR CHANCE

"As God is my judge, I promise to amend my life and to worry you no more if you will only come back. I always have stayed for you and gave you all the money I could spare and do not regret it.

"Marjorie, won't you please give me just one chance? . . . You can come and go as you please, if you will only bring your things back and stay with me.

"Life is awfully empty without you, and no one could love you more deeply than I.

"I have no enmity toward you and will always be ready and open to help you and take you back anytime. I hate to see you work so hard, but I suppose you must take up your mind some way.

"Marjorie, please open your heart and come back to me.

"With the deepest of love, Walter."

BEGS WIFE TO RETURN

The second letter bore no date but read:

"Marjorie Dear: "Please bring your things back over here and come back to me for a while or forever. Please, Marge'

"It was wrong on my part on taking them from you (this reference, it was explained in court, was in the matter of some letters belonging to her.)

"Please give me another chance. Please! Come back and stay a while longer with me, as I have paid and been suffering plenty for a long time. I do not want to break down completely and wretch my life.

"(I don't mean to be selfish or hurt your right to happiness.) Ah, Marge, I care so much and would stick to you more faithfully than any man living, in spite of my faults.

"I want to sacrifice like a man and let you go if you really wish it, but please Marge stay just a little longer with me so that I might stand the shock of losing you a little better."

The third letter was in the same vein as the other two.

Testimony was completed at noon. Arguments of counsel followed and the case was expected to reach the jury in the afternoon.

BRITISH HANDICAP—Map graphically illustrates the handicap of Great Britain as Irish neutrality and the German control of French ports blocks off southern England from regular trade routes.

Britain May Be Forced to Use Battleships for Convoy Duty

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—The German sea blockade may soon force the British government to alter a fundamental policy of the Royal Navy and throw battleships of the line into the risky business of convoying merchant ships.

The British almost came to that pass in the World War, when, as Admiral Sims put it, submarine warfare had starved the British to within six weeks of surrender.

But the convoy system answered the U-boat. At last destroyers were assigned to escort vital supplies. Battleships stood by for later use. The destroyers did so well the battleships never were used.

And so the battleships remained the backbone of the grand fleet, carried out time-honored British policy to remain intact, wait for the supreme moment of life or death for the empire.

That time it is difficult

NAVAL TRIPLE THREAT

The submarine-raider-plane menace is a German triple threat today than in 1917, although the British public isn't aware of it yet. Here are eight reasons why:

1—The Germans have the western tip of France, saving their subs and surface raiders and planes hundreds of miles of risky ocean travel from home bases to convoy lanes and back.

2—The Germans as ever are perfect co-ordinators. They have blended the attack of their subs and pocket battleships and planes—and they are working them all from the same base—Lorient, France.

3—The British gave up by their treaty with Ireland in 1938, naval bases at Lough Swilly, Berehaven, and Cobh. That makes their flotillas go 200 to 400 miles further for refueling and repair.

4—In the World War, the British had the help of the French, Italian, Japanese, and later the American fleets for blockade, patrol and convoy. Today they face the task of blockading Europe, fighting in the Mediterranean, and patroling far eastern waters all alone.

DESTROYERS CUT TO 200

5—At the start of the World War, the British had more than 500 destroyers. Counting the 50 old ships we sent them recently they have no more than 200 destroyers today.

6—Ireland's stubborn neutrality and the German conquest of France forced the British to forsake two of their convoy lanes—through the English channel to London, and through St. George's channel to the Irish sea and Liverpool. That leaves one lane around the northern tip of Ireland on which the Germans can concentrate.

7—Nearby Scandinavia and France supplied many vital war supplies and much food to Britain during the World War. Today the British must bring in their supplies from far flung posts of empire, South America and the United States.

8—The British had well over 16,000,000 tons of long-range merchant shipping at the start of the World War. They had only 13,000,000 tons when this war started. Recently they've been losing 100,000 tons a week. Even with the neutral shipping they've acquired, the best estimates indicate they have only 12,000,000 tons today.

IRISH BASES NEEDED

Two immediate solutions of the problem are possible. The first is to get the Irish bases they need cooperatively for airplane observation. But that might mean bloodshed since Eamon de Valera will never consent to abandon neutrality.

The other way is to convoy merchant ships with battleships.

The British had 15 battleships when the war started. They lost the Royal Oak to a submarine. Three battle cruisers, the Renown, the Repulse and the Hood can also cope with planes, subs and surface raiders. That makes 17. But five battleships at least are in the Mediterranean. One or two more, perhaps, in the Far East.

Aces in the hole are the five 30-knot battleships started in 1937. They are either ready for action, or are even now with the grand fleet somewhere off northern England.

The German triple threat is bad for these battleships. But the empire lifeline's in danger. The British may have to throw em in and hope for the best.

Captain Tells Story Of Big Italian Rout

columns of three battalions each. As soon as the fight began and the first machine-gun bursts were fired, the Italians were thrown back and started retreating in a northeasterly direction.

"A company of Greek cavalry under Captain Tavoularris simultaneously attacked Samarina (a Greek town in Epirus) and forced about 2000 Italians there to leave in the direction of Mount Smolika, taking the difficult pass which leads toward Distrato.

"In a ravine locally called Prionia, we took our first 11 Italian prisoners without resistance. They raised their hands and shouted 'Viva Greca.'

LOOT IS HEAVY

"Our march forward was delayed by material, such as machine-guns, automatic guns, and boxes of hand grenades and ammunition, strewn over the pass.

"At 3 p. m. my battalion attacked, pressing around Distrato. A fight developed in the ravine while I was trying to climb Mount Smolika to gain a dominant firing position.

"A night attack launched by more battalions drove the Italians back north of Smolika and threw them into the ravine.

"There the fighting continued for six days. The Italians being chased back from hilltop to hilltop, managed to take advantage of the terrain to circle about.

ORDER TO ATTACK

"At 1 p. m. on Nov. 5 I received orders to attack and occupy a strategic height with one company of infantry. The height was held by about 400 Italians with full equipment. They were supported by batteries on a hill 1000 yards away, but by 2:10 p. m. the height was taken, with the Italians driven back, leaving behind 64 dead and wounded and 27 prisoners.

"I was wounded in this engagement. The Italians, fighting in small groups of about 25, retreated in panic. My forces carried on the fight through Nov. 6 when reinforcements arrived, my men were so enthusiastic that I could not hold them back.

RETREAT A ROUT

"On Nov. 6 the Italians still were being hotly pursued in the direction of Koritza when the retreat developed into an irregular flight, the Italians throwing away their equipment.

"Up to 8 o'clock that night, we had taken about 800 Italian prisoners and killed as many more.

"On the snow-covered slope of Mt. Smolika, which is 8500 feet high (highest in that region) about 250 Italians were killed by bayonet charges and machine-gun fire.

"At 9 o'clock on the night of Nov. 6 an Italian cavalry column coming from the direction of Koritza to assist the retreat was held and dispersed, and itself retreated in disorder.

PANIC SPREADS

"Panic spread to the whole column. They threw away everything they had in order to flee more quickly.

"We tied our prisoners together with ropes in groups of 18 and led them back, each group being escorted by two Greeks.

"They made no resistance. On the contrary, they seemed pleased at their capture.

"Throughout the fighting, Italian planes with Greek colors machine-gunned and bombed the Greeks. During the first day they flew as low as 1000 feet."

Italians have denied previous Greek charges that Italian planes bore Greek markings, indicating they may have been inspired by the fact Italian warplanes have as tail insignia the white cross of the House of Savoy on a blue or red field with a crown in the center. The Greek national emblem is similar, they said.—Editor's Note.

Nazis Claim Accord Reached With Russia

4—Whatever compensation Russia may desire in return for her support of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo arrangements for a "new world" must come from a "bankruptcy inventory" of the British Empire. German sources seem certain that Molotoff, speaking for Stalin, considers Britain already defeated, just as does the Axis.

AXIS WON'T OBJECT

5—If the Soviet Union should desire to realize her age-long dream of obtaining access to the world's oceans, say via Iran or Afghanistan and British India, she will find the Axis powers "disinterested." In other words these powers will raise no objections.

6—All parties concerned will join in efforts to bring about a non-aggression pact between Russia and Japan, as a result of which Japan, too, will show her "disinterest" in those regions which Russia regards as part of her "grossraum."

The talks between Molotoff and the ranking German leaders, it was said, were as complete and all-embracing that no early visit to Moscow by Von Ribbentrop is contemplated.

While the world awaited concrete manifestation of the outcome of the parleys here, Germany and Russia lost no time in resuming their economic negotiations.

Karl Schnurre, head of the German economic delegation to the U. S. S. R., returned on Molotoff's train to Moscow, as did the German ambassador to Moscow, Count Friedrich von der Schulenburg. The German delegation had been in Moscow for some time before Molotoff's visit.

Moscow was accompanied to Ankhiter station by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop with whom he had a [illegible]

RAF BOMBS BLAST DOCKS AT TARANTO

the balance of power in the Mediterranean area on land as well as at sea, naval sources said today.

With one stroke, they said, the fleet air arm has

Eased the task of convoys reinforcing the British armies in Egypt and Palestine.

Released powerful naval units for service in the Far East, where the appointment of Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke Popham as commander-in-chief points to a strengthening of the empire's Oriental forces.

Allowed Britain's battle cruisers and lighter ships armed with eight inch guns to join in the search for a German commerce raider in the Atlantic.

Boosted the British Empire's prestige with the Turks, Greeks and Moslems of the eastern Mediterranean area.

Reversed the ratio of capital ships in the Mediterranean from six to four in favor of Italy to four to three in favor of Britain.

DUCE FLEET SMASHED

The British said torpedo-carrying planes of the fleet severely damaged two Italian battleships, "probably" knocked a third out of action, and wrecked two cruisers and two auxiliary warships in an Armistice night raid on the Italian naval base at Taranto. They declared the only battleships Italy still has in action are of World War vintage.

They also saw in the attack proof that airplanes operating from aircraft carriers at sea can sink a battleship with their one-ton torpedoes, if not with bombs.

The man most affected by the British victory is Lieut.-Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, who expects to find it easier to reinforce his armies in Palestine and Egypt, facing Italian forces estimated by neutral sources as two or three times stronger.

Italian planes operating from Sardina, the lower tip of Italy, Libya and the Dodecanese Islands still can bomb British supply lines, however, it was admitted.

U-BOAT PERIL CITED

British naval and military circles said, however, that Italy's always-difficult problem of reinforcing her legions in North Africa now verges on the "impossible."

Military circles in London admit that the Italians have considerable stores in Libya, but declare smilingly that the British navy will "draw a band of iron through the Mediterranean so tight the Italians would be using bows and arrows when their present stocks are exhausted."

Strictly from a naval viewpoint, adherents of air superiority declare the British victory at Taranto sounds the death knell of massive fighting ships, too costly to be risked in action unless they have heavy superiority in guns.

Neutral naval sources termed huge German submarines carrying 20 torpedoes and operating as either underwater or surface craft "a menace more dangerous than any pocket battleship."

These undersea craft, larger than any in the world except the French "Surcouf," usually attack from the surface at dusk. They have a surface speed of 19 knots.

Admiralty officials disclosed today that only eight vessels of the 38-ship British convoy which ran afoul a German pocket battleship in mid-Atlantic are now missing.

Thirty of the merchantment, it was stated, have reached British harbors, and of the missing eight some may still be on the high seas

SHELLS FOR NAZIS—On duty aboard a destroyer assigned to escort duty, this British sailor gets a kick out of fondling an armful of shells . . . which he undoubtedly hopes will bring Britain a few sea victories.

EX-REP. O'BRIEN, N. J., DIES

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 14 (AP)—Charles F. X. O'Brien, 61, former Democratic Congressman and Jersey City commissioner, died today.

RAF SHOOTS DOWN 13 NAZI BOMBERS

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP) Royal Air Force fighting planes roared to battle off the southeast coast today, the air ministry announced, and shot down 13 German dive bombers, one fighter and a heavy bomber seeking to cross the channel for daylight raids on Britain.

In all fifteen planes were destroyed, the ministry said.

Two light formations of Nazi planes tried to attack London, but the British said they were repelled by defense fighters before they could reach the capital proper.

Early this evening four bombs smashed into a department store in a London suburb, taking hundreds of homeward bound Londoners and shoppers by surprise. There was no air raid warning, and no plane could be heard.

The fight over the coast was one of the biggest in recent weeks and eyewitnesses said probably 100 German planes, 15 of them bombers, were in the Nazi flight, moving down from the northeast when a solitary Spitfire appeared suddenly.

Close behind the little British plane came other R. A. F. machines, observers said, and the attack opened up furiously and continued for nearly an hour with German ships spinning earthward until the others, seeing the game was going against them, turned and retired to France.

One British pilot alone got three Nazi planes, the Air Ministry said.

A few planes which reached the edge of the London area headed around without dropping bombs. The Royal Air Force reported it cleared the skies in less than half an hour.

The two formations tried what appeared to be a pincher movement, attacking from two directions.

The first wave of about a dozen bombers, escorted by three high-flying fighters, crossed the Kent coast and headed for the capital at the same time as another wave of about 20 planes approached from the mouth of the Thames.

In the 12 months since the first bomb of the war dropped on British soil in an attack on the Shetland Islands Nov. 13, 1939, the government has reported 2875 raiding planes shot down during assaults on the United Kingdom and shipping.

This represents an approximate loss of about 7200 men. Royal Air Force defense losses in this same period were reported at 815 fighters, but 405 of the pilots were said to have been saved.

Bombing casualties in the year were reported at about 15,000 killed and 21,500 wounded, 75 per cent in the London area.

Chamberlain's Ashes Are Buried in Abbey

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)—The ashes of former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain were buried today beneath the grey stone floor of the nave of Westminster Abbey, resting place of many of Britain's historic figures.

Representatives of the royal family and members of the British Cabinet attended the ceremony, the Anglican Church burial service.

The 40-minute memorial rites were carried out in an atmosphere of peace and serenity despite the persistent air raids which Chamberlain had been unable to prevent.

At the close of the ceremony, Mrs. Chamberlain, heavily veiled, knelt on the floor, took chrysanthemum petals from her handbag and dropped them into the two-foot square, purple-lined crypt.

Prime Minister Churchill, clad in a long black coat with an astrakhan collar, stood intent among his cabinet ministers throughout the service at the graveside.

The Duke of Gloucester, brother of King George VI, represented the royal family. Mrs. Chamberlain curtsied when he shook hands and murmured his sympathies.

Many present were in uniform. The order of the burial service, printed in blue ink, had with it an air raid warning headed in flaming red:

"Should it be necessary to take cover during the service;"

Then it gave directions by which various parts of the congregation would be conducted to the safety of the abbey's deeper sanctums.

Penn. Thanks Kelly for Aid

Thanks for "the part you played in helping us carry the second largest state in the Union for President Roosevelt and his running-mates" were conveyed to former Lieut.-Gov. Francis E. Kelly today in a letter from the Pennsylvania Democratic state committee.

"Your appearance in Pennsylvania," the letter said, "and the sound and convincing appeal of the messages you delivered to the electorate of this state contributed in a large measure to the majority of approximately 300,000 votes that we were able to roll up for our President.

"In the critical days ahead, we trust that we may count on your able counsel and continued interest in the cause each of us values."

Kelly also campaigned and spoke for Roosevelt and the Democratic ticket in Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, all "doubtful" states eventually carried by Roosevelt.

Sub-zero cold again froze much of the Middle West today but relief was approaching the plains states where rising temperatures were forecast for tonight or tomorrow.

The toll of known dead in the areas ravaged by extreme cold for this time of year and one of the worst Great Lakes storms in decades stood at 108, not including 51 missing sailors.

Valentine, Neb., with 16 below zero was the coldest spot in the nation today. Lemmon, S. D., with 24 below, was the coldest last night.

Other sub-zero morning readings included Huron, S. D., 13; Bismarck, N. D., and North Platte, Neb., 8; Williston, N. D., 7; Devil's Lake, N. D., Sioux City, Ia., and Pueblo, Colo., 5; Goodland, Kas., 4, and Omaha, Neb., and Rapid City, S. D., 1.

Eighteen sailors were known to have perished in Lake Michigan during the week's storms.

Two lake freighters and two fishing tugs were believed to have gone to the bottom. The freighters William B. Davock and the Anna C. Minch were struck by the gale near Ludington, Mich. The bodies of 16 members of their crews were washed ashore. The bodies of two hands aboard the pulpwood carrier Novadoc, aground off Pentwater, Mich., also were found.

"I found out afterward it was Half-Mile rd. I only knew it then by the way I had driven.

"He still had the gun pressed against me with one hand when he told me to stop, but with his other he pulled out a piece of rope and whipped it around my wrists.

"Then he pocketed his gun and while I struggled, he tied my wrists tight and with another piece of rope tied up my legs.

"I nearly fainted—I think I must have for a moment or two.

"I could hear him talking, but I don't remember anything he said. I don't think any girl would under those circumstances.

"He attacked me then. It was the most horrible experience I could ever think of. I did faint.

"Afterwards he untied my wrists and with that gun again held against me, he said:

"'Go back to Cambridge—the same way.'

"At Broadway and Northern Artery in Somerville he told me to stop the car. He opened the door and leaped out, still pointing the gun at me. He said:

"'Keep going. I'll be watching you. Don't stop.'"

THE LATEST WRINKLE in debutante activity is a contest called "pick your favorite debutante movie Queen" which is a feature of the three-day Christmas Arcade—a glorified fair being held in John Hancock Hall to benefit the Robert Breck Brigham Hospital . . .

A movie of several of the season's photogenique debs is thrown upon the screen and at the end of each performance members of the audience cast a vote for the girl they think is the best actress . . . At the conclusion of the fair the girl winning the most ballots will win a prize—and who knows but what a talent scout may take a peek at the movie and offer one of our debs a try at Hollywood! . . .

Busy Day for the Debs

SEEING THEMSELVES as others see them was the climax of a busy day for the debs . . . In the morning they had their baptism of fire as ushers at the first of the season's Morning Musicales where they performed their duties admirably . . . After a quick lunch at the Arcade they spent a busy afternoon guiding Christmas shoppers around the interesting booths where you can check off everything on your gift list from toys to skiing paraphernalia.

Among the most photogenique of the girls is Susan Strong . . . She is rather out of character in the movie which shows her sitting at a card table playing solitaire . . . Blonde, vivacious an dpopular, we doubt if Susan ever has much time on her hands for playing solitaire! . . . Barbara Ann Paine does a bit of Red Cross knitting in the movie and other domestic scenes show Jean Roberts holding a hank of yarn while Harriet Moffat winds it into a neat ball . . . Sally Cole sitting on the floor typing a letter . . . Ann Folsom snapping a picture with her candid camera . . . and Mary Whitney waxing skis . . .

Snapshots of the fair . . . Sally Lawrence considering a nice green tweed suit piped with crimson . . . Mrs. Van Houten MacBride supervising the attractive booth sponsored by one of our leading furniture establishments . . . Mrs. Henry A. Murray selecting some Christmas gifts from a wonderful display of sporting goods . . . Mrs. William Brace Pratt admiring the fashion show which is another feature of the fair . . . Nancy Scott trying on a modish little mink hat which is for sale at one of the displays . . . Mary Favorite admiring a silver fox bonnet . . . Mrs. Frederick Crocker, Jr., and Kaki Ladd presiding over a booth of novel gifts . . .

Morning Musicale

Smart Set Attends

APRIL SHOWERS bring Mayflowers—and dreary drizzles seemed to bring forth colorful floral corsages on the dresses of committee members of Boston's famous Morning Musicales which opened the 13th season of fashionable concerts at the Hotel Statler yesterday.

Mrs. John W. Myers of Westwood, chairman of the musicales, wore orchids on her grayish-green wool dress; Mrs. John A. Greene, director of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy which benefits from proceeds on the concerts, was resplendent in cocoa brown wool with an orchid corsage, and Mrs. H. Parker Whittington wore a fragrant gardenia nosegay on her black ensemble. Mrs. Whittington spent a busy morning admonishing subscribers to refrain from knitting during the program (it disturbs the guest artists).

Charles Kullman, star tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, was the artist at the opening concert which, as usual, drew a packed house. Mrs. Robert Stevenson and Mrs. Arthur Bell had their accustomed "two on the aisle." Mrs. Francis Hastings chatted with friends during intermission and Polly Cotter wore a cheerful rainy day outfit—a slim, black wool dress, a fireman's red coat with black lapels. Silver foxes added an extra modish touch to Miss Constance Learned's black dress and Mrs. Julian Leonard wore a mustard and brown checked tweed suit.

Still other fashionable music lovers were Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, who occupied a box seat; Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toppan, Mrs. William B. Long, in a two-piece currant-red wool outfit with black coque feathers curling down from the crown of her red turban; Mrs. Robert Daley in a black dress with a Persian trimmed flame wool jacket; Mrs. William Tudor Gardiner, making a distinguished appearance in pleated beet red silk with a matching feather turban on her snowy white hair; Mrs. Charles E. Donovan with a rosette of turquoise velvet adorning her black beret; Olive Perry in a blue-green dress and bonnet type hat with a long, flowing veil.

Jubilee

College Club Celebrates

Mrs. Dwight Morrow will be a guest of honor at a dinner party Monday evening, Nov. 18, marking the climax of the Golden Jubilee celebration of the College Club. Dr. Henry Noble McCracken, president of Vassar, will be the main speaker, and Miss Ada Comstock, president of Radcliffe, will preside.

Other distinguished guests will include Mrs. Lucien Howe of Cambridge, and Mrs. Samuel F. Clarke of Williamstown, co-founders of the College Club; Mrs. Alfred C. Lane of Cambridge, one of the original corporators; and Mrs. Robert Ware of Boston, another early member who helped to establish the club.

Mrs. Theodore C. Haffenreffer of Brookline is chairman of the dinner. Mrs. Joe W. Gerrity of Newton and Mrs. Hollis T. Gleason of Cohasset will pour.

Among the many members attending will be Mrs. Percy A Atherton, Miss Anne M. Alden, Miss Esther W. Bates, Miss Caroline Bourland, Mrs. Samuel N. Braman, Miss Dorothy Carter, Miss Florence D. Chapin, Miss Sara Comins, Miss Millicent M. Coss, Miss Mabel H. Cummings, Miss Florence Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson D. Clark Jr.

St. Joseph's Grads At Breakfast On Sunday

Following the usual custom of recent years, the fall activities of St. Joseph's Alumni Asesociation of Roxbury will commence with the annual communion breakfast next Sunday.

The alumni will attend the 9 o'clock mass in St. Joseph's Church and the breakfast will be held in Rose Croix Hall, K. of C. building, Dudley and Warren sts.

Guest speaker will be John B. Caney, principal of the Jamaica Plain high school, whose subject will be "Europe, Yesterday and Today."

Among the guests will be the Rev. Fred Donovan, S. J., a well-know alumnus, who is enjoying a brief vacation from his Jamaica missions.

Gerard N. Hayes, president of the association, will be toastmaster, and will present the pastor, Rev. Charles Ring, who will give the invocation.

Heading the committee are Miss Lillian Jolley and Francis D. Sullivan, as co-chairmen, assisted by Alice Boyle McLaughlin, Genevieve Perkins, John Whalen, William J. Gormley, Rita Carlin, Gertrude Eichron Kelly, Genevieve Mahoney Kealey, Helen Crahan, Millicent Adair and Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts.

Latest in Fruit Breads

By MARTHA LEE

Delicious fruit breads are an interesting addition to the world of home-cooking. They are best served with tea, but they can even be served as a dessert. Two thin slices of fruit bread put together with cream cheese in between make an ideal accompaniment for afternoon tea, too.

Cranberry Orange Bread is something new in the way of sweet bread—and it's chockful of cranberry sauce cubes and nuts. Spread with cream cheese or butter, the children will like it as a between-meal snack. It will satisfy their sweet tooth, and give them extra nourishment.

CRANBERRY ORANGE BREAD

2 cups all-purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
¼ cup sugar
Juice and grated rind of 1 orange
2 tbsp. shortening
1 egg
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup cubes of jellied cranberry sauce

Sift dry ingredients together. To orange juice and rind and boiling water to make ¾ cup liquid. Add melted shortening and beaten egg. Mix with dry ingredients. Fold in nuts and cubes of cranberry sauce, cut about the size of plump raisins. Bake in a greased bread pan at 325 deg. F. about 1 hour, or until bread is done.

This Raisin "Custard" Bread was named because of the impression of custardy flavor introduced in the topping. Raisins and the rich spiced topping keep this bread moist so that it responds well to reheating for a second service. It's the kind of fruit bread you'll be glad to have in the bread box when friends drop in.

RAISIN CUSTARD BREAD

Batter:
1 cup raisins
5 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
5 tbsp. shortening
1 egg
1 cup buttermilk
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. soda
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tbsp. nutmeg
Topping:
1 egg
3 tbsp. melted butter
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon

Pour boiling water over raisins and let stand 5 minutes; drain, and if seeded raisins are used, slice in two. Cream sugar, salt, and shortening; add egg and beat. Add buttermilk and flour sifted with soda, baking powder and nutmeg, and beat well. Add raisins and beat. Pour into a wax paper-lined pan (about 13 x 9½ x 2 inches). Combine all topping ingredients beat well, and spread over batter. Bake 20 minutes in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.). Serve hot or cold. May be reheated. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

The following recipe makes a loaf of apple brown bread which is cake-like in texture and flavor.

APPLE BROWN BREAD

1 cup sugar
½ cup fat
2 eggs
¾ tsp. salt
1 tsp. soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1½ tbsp. sour milk
1 cup raw apples (grind but do not peel)
2 cups all purpose flour
¾ cup nutmeats
1 tsp. vanilla

Combine ingredients and bake in a loaf pan in moderate oven for 45 minutes.

TINY CUBES of cranberry jelly glow like jewels in this fruity Cranberry-Orange Bread—good with any meal and especially delicious as a dessert.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

YOU HATE to make mistakes. You think that life will be wonderful, some day, when you've learned not to make them. It won't.

You'll never learn not to make mistakes.

And nothing worse could happen to you than to never make mistakes. For mistakes are part of all healthy life. If you grow. If you take chances and make experiments, as all growing things must do . . . you're bound to make one mistake after another. If you refuse to grow—if you refuse to take chances and make experiments—why, that's the biggest mistake of all, for that's a refusal to live.

"But some people never make mistakes," you say. "They seem just perfect—"

Yes, indeed! And honest, now—have you ever liked a "perfect person"? Don't you secretly detest them and avoid them whenever possible? Of course you do—and for a very good reason. You dislike "perfect people" because they're not warm and human—they're not really alive. Life doesn't move in them as it should, rippling, splashing, breaking down banks, making puddles—making mistakes. They're stagnant.

HEALTHY LIVES must make mistakes. And there's nothing dishonorable about mistakes, if we make them from honest motives and learn a lesson from them.

The greater the human being, the greater chances he'll take, the harder feats he'll attempt—and the bigger blunders he'll make. But—We needn't make the same mistake over and over.

Make mistakes—but make progressive ones. Make wider, higher efforts and experiments . . . make nobler mistakes. Life grows by its widening efforts, by its widening mistakes and the wisdom that comes from mistakes.

Once a great poet put this truth into immortal lines. He wrote of the Nautilus, that strange sea creature, whose shell, with its widening chambers of fragile pearl, is found in Mediterranean beaches.

The poet studied that shell thought of the life that had gone on secretly within it building cell upon cell, in widening coveln . . .

Then the thought of his own life building slowly, secretly and he cried:

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul
"As the swift seasons roll!
"Leave thy low-vaulted past!
"Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
"Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast
"Till thou at length art free.
"Leaving thine outgrown shell on life's unresting sea."

LIVE! Live and dare to take chances, even if each new chance gets you in wrong.

Have the courage to get in wrong. Be willing to pay for wisdom by getting in wrong. They build on that wisdom.

Take another chance—make another mistake, a nobler mistake.

Build a "new temple, nobler than the last"—and so go on—and on no matter what it costs, go on!

FIXIN' FLATS

So You Can Ride Away

1—Nellmarie and Marguerette Sutter Suffer a Flat Tire

Flat tires—the automobile kind—are due to be taken for a ride in the future all because of the recent invention of a 40-year-old Brookline machinist and inventor.

Like many other great inventors, Edwin J. Sutter of Beacon st. Brookline, spent several weary hours during his spare time attempting to perfect a device which would eventually lessen the saving of human lives, and also aid in the comfort of his fellow men, especially motorists.

It also tends to eliminate tire-changing on the roads which has been directly responsible for 33,000 deaths last year.

Today Inventor Sutter presents to the motorist world one of the most unique and most welcome devices which at sometime or another the average automobile driver has thought of, but that was the extent of his thoughts.

The deflated tire is run up on the truck, in simple manner, and the car is then driven either home or to the nearest garage for repairs at a rate of twenty, thirty, forty or even fifty miles per-hour, without injury to the tire.

The device, called the "Sutter Emergency Flat Tire Truck," measures 90 inches overall approximately 24 inches in width. It has four iron wheels with solid rubber tires and the body of the "truck" which conveys the punctured tire to its destination is made of all-steel.

The flat tire truck is so designed that it may be used either front or rear wheels. When used on the rear wheel the tire sets, very much, as into the body of the truck, when removing the wheel in the usual manner. When used on the front wheels the tire rests on the front axle, which is constructed so as to allow the other wheel base to pass the tire.

The simple process of using a tractor is applied to the new car wheel but is modified to fit the different design.

Sutter said that because his wife and five daughters had continuous tire trouble on the road he was prompted to design the "tire truck."

HURRICANES . . . BRITISH WAR PLANES

Speedy Fighter Craft Blow Hot Against Nazi Aerial Invaders

Picturesque . . . But Deadly—Flying in formation over England, these Hurricane fighter planes are as deadly as the name signifies. They with the famed British Spitfires have proven to be veritable tornadoes against the invading Nazis. One Hurricane squadron was credited with bagging 15 Italian planes in a dog fight over the Thames estuary on Armistice Day.

Storm Freak—Ripping through the Middle Northwest States, the gale left many freak sights . . . as this one . . . in which the wind blew these houseboats high and dry on the banks of the Saginaw river in Michigan.

Storm's Victim—Driven ashore by the recent Great Lakes' gale, the Canadian pulpwood carrier Novadoc is pictured on the shore breaking up . . . pounded by waves at Fentwater, Mich. Entire crew of 15 men was rescued by a fishing tug.

EVENING AMERICAN, THURSDAY, NOV. 14, 1940

ONLY THE BEST conscriptees are going to Army training camps. To weed out the physically unfit, soldier-surgeons are supplementing civilian physicians' examinations with careful and unexcelled rigid heart, lung and blood tests.

The purpose is obviously to avoid a repetition of the 1917 situation which made it possible for thousands of draftees to file claims for disability pensions, although they were in the armed forces only a few weeks.

It is also probable that the Army hopes to prevent needless public criticism of conscription.

And one of the easiest ways to do this is to reject at the start young men who are apt to contract pneumonia and similar diseases when they are taken from their comfortable homes and exposed to the elements in camp tents and hastily constructed barracks.

The memory of the influenza epidemic which claimed more of our soldiers' lives than did bullets and poison gas in France during the World War still lingers.

The Army is taking no chances this time.

WORSHIPPING MARS is a costly venture, as people from the days of the ancient Babylonians have learned to their sorrow.

No one seems to have invented a means of making the worship less expensive.

London now reports that the current conflict is costing the British people fourteen million pounds a day—roughly about fifty-six million dollars in our money.

Multiply that sum by three hundred and sixty-five and you get twenty thousand, four hundred and forty thousand million dollars as the cost for a year.

And some people foolishly say the war may continue for 30 years.

One does not have to possess much imagination to know what tremendous good, what unprecedented general happiness would result if only a small part of the money spent for war by Britain, by Germany and by all other nations were invested in the productive activities of peace.

IN THE BOSTON AREA the Salvation Army is seeking fifty thousand dollars to achieve its goal of two hundred thousand dollars.

The money, surprisingly little when compared with the mountainous hoards of gold that are poured into the Moloch of war, will feed the hungry, shelter the destitute and bring solace to the sick and dying.

Mr. Damon E. Hall, general chairman of the Salvation Army's maintenance campaign organization, hopes that the necessary donations will be obtained by next Tuesday at the latest.

We are more optimistic.

Appreciating the good works that the Salvation Army is constantly doing, we predict the $200,000 goal will be reached before Saturday.

LIKE A BLITZKRIEG, winter has descended on the West and Middle West.

TODAY IN WEST
Cars Buck Snow

Eighty-mile gales level buildings, fell trees and pile snow to mid-January depths, particularly in the Lake Michigan section, where nearly a hundred lives are feared lost.

Boston fortunately escapes the storm's fury. Our streets and highways remain clear, as the picture of Summer Street shows. And our people continue their activities, experiencing nothing worse than a disagreeable rain.

Talking about the severity of New England weather has long been a popular American pastime.

Everything from earthquakes to volcanic eruptions is supposed to disrupt our lives.

Actually, as we who live here know, the opposite is true.

Rarely are our storms violent.

More often than not, we get the tail end of a blizzard, which has worn itself out before it reaches us.

We should take a leaf from the books of Florida and California and brag a little more than we customarily do.

In view of the storms that have caused destruction elsewhere and passed us by, we certainly have reason to be excusably boastful.

By E. V. DURLING

I AM in Columbus, O. So are Pierre Van Paassen and H. R. Knickerbocker. These two famous foreign correspondents are lecturing on the war situation. They seem quite pessimistic. Mr. Van Paassen in his lecture said: "Hitler has us on his list. Our turn is next." Mr. Knickerbocker told his audience: "We are in for it." Since Messrs. Van Paassen and Knickerbocker have lectured here, young gentlemen of Columbus eligible for the draft have become greatly alarmed. One clubwoman said of Mr. Van Paassen's talk: "It was just too thrilling. I haven't been so frightened since I saw Boris Karloff in 'Frankenstein.'"

COLUMBUS is a lively little city. The 20,000 young people who attend Ohio State University and Capital University may have something to do with that. Then there are the soldiers at Fort Hayes. Population is 304,936. It was given the name Columbus on Washington's birthday in 1812. Ninety-five per cent of the residents are native born.

IT'S A GREAT football town. At some games played by Ohio State, the attendance mark runs more than 90,000. If Ohio State loses, there is more gloom in Columbus than in Brooklyn when the Dodgers lose two to the Giants. And that's a lot of gloom . . . The American Union Insurance Building of Columbus is 47 stories high. It can be seen 20 miles from the city . . . Do you know of Betty Rowland? She is Hollywood's most recent "Red-Headed Ball of Fire." She's a Columbus girl. Her sister Rozelle, once a burlesque actress and night club floor show dancer, married Baron Empain, one of the richest men in Europe. Among other things, the Baron owned a controlling interest in the Paris subway (The Metro). He is now in a German prison camp. The Baroness, Betty's sister, is at her chateau outside of Paris.

AVERAGE TEN MARRIAGE PROPOSALS EACH WEEK
Beautiful and Cultured Airline Hostesses

THERE ARE about 9000 co-eds in Columbus. When you've seen one Columbus co-ed, you've seen them all. They are the bobby-sock wearing type of co-eds. Also the kind that yells across the street to a group of fellow students, 'Where are you kids going tonight?" About 35 co-eds lost their boy friends temporarily last night. The George White's Scandals stage show unit is in town. The competition among Ohio State's young gentlemen to be seen taking a Scandals chorus girl to dinner after the show is terrific. The Scandals chorus girls do not wear bobby socks . . . Airline hostesses are also favored in the matrimonial race. They averaged seven proposals a week in 1939 and ten a week this year. Next to airline hostesses, nurses receive most proposals. After them are coffee shop waitresses.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-!- MY DAY

CHICAGO, Ill., Wednesday—I spent two of the pleasantest hours I have ever spent visiting music projects yesterday morning in Detroit. Churches have given space for rehearsal to these WPA units, so it was in the basement of a church that we listened to a gypsy band playing dance music, to which it was almost impossible to sit still.

The leader has a delightful personality. They told me that when he plays in the schools, he tells the children stories of the gypsy customs. Last Christmastime he kept a group of youngsters enthralled while he told about the gypsy Christmas and played haunting gypsy music.

He was followed by another dance orchestra and, finally, by a full symphony orchestra, the fourth best WPA orchestra in the country. They played two movements in a new symphony by Florence Price, one of the few women to write symphonic music. She is a colored woman and a native of Chicago, who has certainly made a contribution to our music. The orchestra rendered her symphony beautifully and then played a Bach choral which ended the concert, much to my regret.

HOWEVER, more treats were in store for us. In a Negro church, we heard a group of spiritual singers who fairly carried us away from our everyday world. I have never heard a group sing better. Their leader, who was discovered digging ditches, can pride himself on an achievement which must give pleasure to innumerable people. He told me that they had sung before almost 100,000 people during the past year.

Then, in the colored Y building, we heard a band play "The Star Spangled Banner," which was a fitting climax to our morning.

At a little after 1 o'clock I was back at the hotel and my niece and namesake, Eleanor Roosevelt, came in with a friend to lunch with me. The two girls told me they had done much campaigning. Everyone wondered that they were still friends, for they had been on opposite sides of the political fence. Eleanor added that she had enjoyed it, but had few allies in and about the Bloomfield Hills section, where the Cranbrook School is located.

At 2:30 we drove out to Cranbrook and I very hurriedly obtained an impression of this most beautiful school. The glimpse of the courtyard, as you enter the girls' school where Mellis' statue of Diana stands poised on her pedestal, is something not to be forgotten. In fact, these fortunate youngsters are surrounded by beauty of nature, architecture and art on every side.

I dined with Mrs. Dorothy Kemp Roosevelt and her mother and my three other nieces who live in Birmingham, Michigan. Then I lectured in the evening at the Cranbrook School and took the night train back to Chicago. Here we have a few hours of quiet before we leave for Springfield, Ill.

HENDERSON PROVES WISE BETTOR

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—At the National Press Club dinner, President Roosevelt conversed with Leon Henderson of the National Defense Council. Henderson—who pooled his home town election bets with the local undertaker—told the President that among the bets he had made was one of $5 at even money . . . He pointed to a noted newspaper man in the room and said: "That's the man. He was so sure he bet even money" . . . The President indicated no surprise. He shrugged and answered: "I always knew that fellow was shipping."

THE SPANISH AID group, tired of red tape required to get 10,000 Spanish Loyalists from France to Mexico, will purchase a ship for $300,000, large enough to transport 2,000 men each trip. In order that the American government should not be involved, the vessel will be chartered under the Mexican flag . . . Station WNYC, the municipal station, which broadcasts missing persons alarms, made an unusual broadcast last week-end. For the first time in three years the station announced: "There are no persons missing in N. Y. today" . . . As a step toward achieving national unity, Tommy Corcoran and Adolf A. Berle, Jr., who had been feuding privately for a long time—shook hands last week.

THIS IS WHY Noel Coward made his sudden trip to Australia: In New York he met the Australian representative here, Richard Gardiner Casey, who told him of the work being accomplished in Australia . . . "But the Empire needs a good-will ambassador there," said Casey. "Some one who'll bring cheer and encouragement. An unusual man can accomplish this" . . . "Is there such a man?" asked Coward . . . "Yes, there is," Casey suggested. "I know a chap who can do it. A certain chap named Noel Coward" . . . Coward hesitated only a moment before making reply and rushing to get the reservations. "I think," he told Casey, "I can persuade that chap to go."

LOUIS B. MAYER, who is heading the Community Chest Drive for Los Angeles, assembled all his employes and made three speeches appealing for funds. Mayer then showed the group a special movie in which Mickey Rooney is featured. The film, made especially for this charity drive, showed Rooney heroically renouncing the purchase of a second-hand car and contributing the money instead to local charities . . . The meeting, attended by several hundred employes, finally concluded and the audience began to leave. Outside, the crowd parted like the Red Sea to make way for Mickey Rooney—driving a new Rolls-Royce, with a specially tinted body and featuring the most modern gadgets ever placed on an automobile.

BOB MOSES, who announced that N. Y. C. would need four new highways to link the traffic arteries as an aid to national defense, hopes to get Federal funds for this program through the intervention of Rex Tugwell . . . Count San Felice of the Italian Consul General's office now commutes between El Morocco and his new post in Albany . . . Beatrice Lillie will return to America before Christmas. Her son now is stationed in Wales . . . Samson Raphaelson, the playwright, finally has disposed of his Hollywood estate. He had despaired of ever being able to sell it and now reports: "I sold it at a 50 per cent loss, which is 100 per cent profit to me."

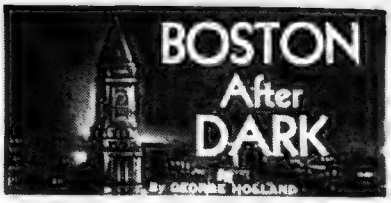
CHARLIE CHAPLIN has delayed his return to Hollywood, because he still hasn't had enough of Manhattan. He has been touring the town unrecognized and finds delight in mingling with groups of youngsters discussing current events. With them he argues the philosophies prescribed in the message with which he concludes "The Great Dictator." Chaplin says: "The most pleasure I've had here was in seeing a high school boy point to his forehead and say: 'The State is here. The State is not the Army, not in the Capitol not you nor me—but here'" . . . Arthur Kober's new book will be called "Grand Concourse" . . . The Canadian Government is permitting the receipts of the road-touring "Hellzapoppin'" to be shipped across the border.



OBSCURED SOMEWHAT BY THE "Battle For The Air" being waged by ASCAP and BMI (the song writers and the radio chains), Serge Koussevitzky and his great Boston Symphony Orchestra and Boss Jimmy Petrillo of the American Federation of Music nevertheless have locked horns to the death . . . It has been the Boston Symphony which has been devastated in the first thrust by Petrillo at the orchestra's vitals . . . (commercially speaking . . .) Never again—if the Symphony remains non-union—will it be able to make a recording for any American company.

THE RECORDING COMPANIES are thoroughly unionized . . . Although Petrillo was unable to make much headway against Dr. Koussevitzky in attempts to hamper the Boston organization's performing activities in public, the musicians' boss could—and did—prevent a continuance of the group's private performances to an audience of wax . . . Such records as have been cut, of course, can be duplicated until the master records wears out

DR. SERGE AND HIS MEN managed to get in some cuttings which music lovers are cherishing as classics . . . Among them were Sibelius' "Second" and "Fifth" symphonies, "Daphnis et Chloe" suite No. 2, by Ravel (widely accepted as great), Beethoven's "Italian Symphony" and "The Passion of Our Lord According to St. Matthew," in which both the Radcliffe and Harvard choral groups participated.

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY FAILED to record "L'Apres-Midi d'un Faune" for Victor, and it's too late to make amends while the unrelenting Mr. Petrillo maintains his clutch on the disc industry . . . This error, or oversight, has left some of the music critics inconsolable, and the young and talented Bostonian, George Frazier, who is sometimes called the "first critic of swing," is mournfully among them.

MR. FRAZIER BY THE BYE, HAS FORSAKEN his beloved Harvard Club in Boston for the no-less-marble halls of the New York hangout for "H" men . . . The lad has hooked on with the slick-paper (which is very slick) magazine "Mademoiselle," and this might call attention to story editors of the movies that George has done an exhaustive study this week of the New England female phenomenon, the "prom-trotter."

THE YARN IS called "New Haven Next," and it wouldn't take a Ben Hecht at $25,000 per week—which Ben extracted for touching up "Foreign Correspondent"—to make this story of an eldering jade of 25 a moon picture of real worth . . . This gets us around to another cultural note of interest to Bostonians.

IT CONCERNS YOUNG Teddy Hannon, who is a grandson of the famous American, Richard Canfield—he after whom the game of solitaire was named . . . Mr. Canfield was a gambler and has become part of U. S. folklore . . . His grandchild has been gambling a bit himself . . . Determined to be a professional writer, and encouraged by his own confidence as well as that of many newspaper folk who know him, Teddy has taken a two-year sabbatical to make the grade . . . A couple of persons whose judgment we respect have seen first drafts of the Hannon brainchild, a novel . . . They say it can't miss and is almost ready for the publisher.

brought money and notice to the Cocoanut Grove, and the after dark set is plunging with enthusiasm.

FOR A LONGEVITY RECORD for a Boston band leader has been cracked this week by Mickey, a Boston boy . . . Lew Conrad held the previous modern record of 62 consecutive weeks, and Maestro Alpert is in his 75th . . . Among those sharing the occasion will be Kathryn Rand, the lovely dancer to whom Mickey is betrothed . . . Friends of the couple hold that honeymoons should not be counted as interrupting long run-records . . . This being true, the Alpert-Rand nuptials will occur before another 73 weeks have elapsed . . . Or so say their chums.

PATRIOTIC COMEDY WITH OLIVIA

By Loucila O. Parsons

Olivia De Havilland

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 Most patriotic films have been so serious and heavy handed that it is a relief to hear that Warners have decided it is time to step in right away with their patriotic comedy, "Miss Wheelright Discovers America." Today Hal Wallis wired that the cast was now set with Olivia De Havilland, George Brent and Jeffrey Lynn in the top spots. Jerry Wald and Richard MacAulay have rushed the script through on Leonard Speigelgass' amusing novel. With Kurt Bernhardt at the directorial helm the picture will start some time around the Christmas holidays.

"Miss Wheelright" gives Olivia De Havilland a chance to be sparkling and gay. She plays a young sophisticate who has traveled all over the world and then is forced by war conditions to "discover" her own country. I hope Olivia takes full advantage of this chance to be beautiful and exciting again. Recently it seems to me she has been affecting a casualness in her appearance, both on and off the screen that is far from flattering. She's such a beautiful girl it is foolish to try to appear less attractive, or "arty" or whatever she had in mind.

ELEANOR POWELL

LOOKS LIKE "Tug Boat Annie" brought in Marjorie Rambeau's ship in a big way. She's launched on a brand new career as a character actress, for yesterday Darryl Zanuck handed her the fat role of Sister Bessie in "Tobacco Road." Next to Charley Grapewin's "Jeeter Lester" it is the biggest part in the picture. The psalm singing role of the lady hill-billy evangelist gives Marjorie plenty of leeway for comedy along with the good gusty preaching. It won't be Dressler or Marjorie to say she is filling the shoes of the beloved Marie. Rambeau was so different in "Tug Boat Annie" she proved she isn't imitating anyone.

CHICAGO NOTES: Yesterday Jane Froisser and Virginia O'Brien choo-chooed in to join us. We hate to lose Ilona Massey but she's due back immediately for "New Wine" along with Alan Curtis, who has been making the hit of his life in Chicago, his home town . . . Bob Cummings is upset over the report that he was unwilling to join our personals. He says it's the first he ever heard he'd been offered $3000 a week for a picture and that if it is true it's a secret from him . . . Brenda Joyce won $15 on a musical quiz program and turned it over to the Red Cross . . . Went to Marshall Fields and the clerks were so busy asking me about Hollywood I couldn't get my shopping done . . . Our Chicago visit is ending all too soon. We train to Detroit in spite of the frightening storm headlines.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Hear that Eleanor Powell and Merrill Pye have said goodbye to romance; Lady Furness was the center of all eyes at Victor Hugo's in a party with Al Delong, Robert Way and Kitty Kelly. But cameramen couldn't get her in a picture with Rudy Vallee; that anklet Lupe Velez is wearing reads: "If lost return to Big Boy Williams;" Myrna Loy is out of the hospital and has moved to Palm Springs to recuperate;

VICTOR MATURE isn't giving Betty Grable a chance to change her mind. He's following her from Chicago to New York; Ed Mutch, the M-G-M producer, will marry Ann Morriss as soon as "Maisie Was a Lady" is completed; note to Hollywood hostesses: Colonel Wright Jr. won't accept invitations now with a view to increase it starts "embarrassing romantic rumors." Old Fairbanks Role for Power

It is 20 years since the late Douglas Fairbanks thrilled the movie-going world in the first of his series of fantastic historical, super-spectacles, "The Mark of Zorro."

On Saturday Keith-Memorial screen will show the 20th Century Fox remake of the Fairbanks epic inal with Tyrone Power in the title role.

TYRONE POWER

It is a tale of early California under Spanish rule, based on Johnston McCulley's story, "The Curse of Capistrano."

As the death defying young adventurer, Power is called upon to do plenty of hard riding, furious fighting, passionate love making and realistic dueling, this last with that incomparable screen villain Basil Rathbone.

Featured with Rathbone at the head of a distinguished supporting cast is lovely Linda Darnell as the fairest senorita in Old California, who gives her love to Zorro. The cast also features Gale Sondergaard, Eugene Pallette, J. Edward Bromberg, Montagu Love, Janet Beecher, Robert Lowery and Chris-Pin Martin.

At great expense 20th Century-Fox reconstructed the Pueblo of Los Angeles of 1820 for "The Mark of Zorro." Location companies were sent into Mexico for background shots of old landmarks and trails in order to insure accuracy.

John Taintor Foote wrote the screen play from an adaptation by Garret Fort and Bess Meredith. Rouben Mamoulian directed.

"Laddie," RKO's film version of Gene Stratton Porter's immortal story featuring Tom Hoe, Virginia Gilmore and little Joan Carroll is the second feature. Joan is the enchanting youngster featured in the Ethel Merman—starring Broadway musical comedy hit, "Panama Hattie," which premiered here with enormous success.

MARK FOR ZORRO

LINDA DARNELL, loveliest senorita in all of Old California, who gives the famous masked bandit in "The Mark of Zorro," her love. Tyrone Power plays the starring adventurer role in the picture which comes to Keith-Memorial screen on Saturday.

'Model Wife' Next For Powell, Blondell

Symphony Adds Barber Overture

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will give its sixth pair of concerts of the 60th season in Symphony Hall on tomorrow afternoon and Saturday evening. This evening there will be a concert in Sanders Theater, Cambridge.

Serge Koussevitzky announces the following programs for Friday and Saturday: Samuel Barber's Overture to "The School for Scandal"; Debussy's two Nocturnes "Nuages" and "Fetes"; Hindemith's Konzertmusik for String and Brass Instruments; and the Second Symphony of Brahms in D major. The music of Mr. Barber, a well-known composer, will then make its first appearance on the programs of this orchestra. Hindemith's orchestral concerts were composed especially for this orchestra on its 50th anniversary 10 years ago, and then first performed.

Dr. Koussevitzky will conduct in Cambridge Symphony of Haydn in G major No. 88; Beethoven's Overture "Leonore" No. 3; and the Fifth Symphony of Shostakovitch.

Loew's Back to Popular Prices

With today's opening of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of Ethel Vance's best-selling novel, "Escape" co-starring Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, Loew's twin theatres revert to their usual scale of popular prices. The early bargain matinee will prevail at both the State and Orpheum until 1 p. m.

New Globe Headliner

Mae Brown Globe's Star; Midnight Show Friday

Burlesque news of the week is the Globe's plan, starting tomorrow, to initiate a weekly Friday midnight show.

Junoesque Mae Brown will be knee-deep in midgets tomorrow when the Globe management will present two shows for the price of one—a gigantic travelling burlesque show headed by La Brown and Hermines Midget Revue.

The latter, direct from Morris Gest's Little Village at the recently terminated New York World's Fair, is a Broadway revue in miniature. Its cast, composed of the world's smallest people, will include pretty gals, dancers, comedians, acrobats, sensational aerial acts, fast comedy skits and the world's only midget band. Incidentally, it was one of the fair's outstanding attractions.

But this is only the half of it. The other half, a full size burlesque extravaganza, will ... a flock of the circuit's cuties assisting Mae "Peaches" Brown, a great Boston favorite. These include Marie Voe, Edna Thompson, Toni Mitchell and many more.

Contributing to the ribaldry will be Pinky Lee, the ringleader, aided by Tanglefoot, Monroe Kirkland, Frank C. Smith, Ted Kent, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson.

The 30 Bernadettes have a new routine of a dozen or more dances of all nations highlighted by one earthquaking specialty. Lee Mariner's popular songs will be a feature of the vaudeville program.

On the screen will be "The Informer," with Victor McLaglen, one of the great pictures of all time, and "The Day the Bookies Wept," with Joe Penner and Betty Grable.

Gayety Exposes Primrose Path

Gayety's screen brings "What Price Decency?," a primrose path picturization ... fully detailed, to Boston ... tonight.

Dorothy Burgess, who has been leading woman for Edmund Lowe, James Cagney and many other Hollywood stars, has the featured part of a girl who learned about life on its seamier side the hard way.

Importantly featured are two ... actors, Alan Hale and Walter ...

Their competent performances lend added credence to this problem play about girls who find ... the primrose path down the underworld's main way, Wall street.

An added attraction, the ... is presenting "London ... Fred F. Wolfe's short with ... Reynolds.

BEACON'S FILMS

Stokowski Gives 'Fantasia' Praise

New York last night witnessed the premiere of Walt Disney's revolutionary sound entertainment, "Fantasia," which boasts a score consisting of eight world-renowned musical selections played by the 103 piece Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski.

The great Stokowski, who pinched in from Hollywood for the premiere, predicts that it will be enjoyed by people 300 years from now.

Lauding "Fantasia" as a new art form, he said that it represents the achievement of what in the past has been the chief dream of many artists the combining of color, sound and motion. And, he says further, it results the [illegible]

Asked about the new and revolutionary sound projection that has been developed especially for "Fantasia" that would when will it take all sound the theater and not come to the audience directly from the screen, Stokowski said:

"The lovely sounds we hear in the forest do not come to us from one focal point so why should that be true of music? We have grown used to hearing music coming toward us from one point but after people hear the music in "Fantasia" they will never be satisfied with the old methods again. When you stand in a forest you hear the songs of the birds over your head, to the right of you, to the left, in back of you. That is the way music should be heard. That is the way Disney projects it in "Fantasia."

This new Disney film will offer a new medium for modern composers, Stokowski believes, pointing out that just as composers have written music for operas so will they now be able to compose original music for a Disney picture.

IF YOU'VE WONDERED what that "C" in W. C. Fields' name stands for, a pretty good guess is that it is for "Chesterfield," judging from the degree of gallantry the comedian is displaying. He is welcoming to the cast of his new Universal picture, "The Bank Dick," his old friend, Jan Duggan, character actress, who has played roles in every one of Fields' productions for the past five years. You'll be seeing the picture at Keith-Memorial Theater one of these weeks.

Gladys Fox Headlines Gala Burlesque Revue at Casino

The effervescent personality and charm of Gladys Fox is a very good reason to see the current burlesque revue at the Casino Theater on Hanover st. She's a charmer from Chicago who has quite a following in town and she never fails to please.

Diane King, a vivacious blonde, brunette Carola, who contributes two exotic dances, and the Parisian lass with the Southern drawl, Lili Sorrell, are three more stars in the beauty display.

George Faye's songs are being well received by Casino audiences. Elinor Walent, Bobby Fay, Charlie Kane and Bobby Goodman the Casino stalwarts, work hard to keep comedy at a high level. The 30 dancing darlings are seen in several new scenes that are really spectacular and unusual for a burlesque revue.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American GAME OF CHECK is open to all persons living in the New England States. However, no employes of the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, nor any newspaper dealers and carriers who deliver the Boston Record, the Boston American or Sunday Advertiser, nor any person acting as a proxy for another, nor any person who has won $500 or more in any contest, may win a prize.

2—Beginning Monday, October 14, 1940, a Check Sheet will be published each weekday in the Boston American and Boston Record. Each Check Sheet will contain three cartoon questions. Four and only four suggested answers will be printed under each cartoon question and in the daily Check Sheet. One and only one of these suggested answers is the correct answer to the question appearing above. The six Check Sheets published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen series. Answers to each week's series of cartoon questions should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor, P. O. Box 2337, c/o the Boston Record-American Game of Check. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes, to those 100 contestants who, by their answers, achieve the 100 highest scores. A Check Sheet will not be judged as a unit—each and every question will be judged separately. Thus a contestant will get credit for each question correctly answered. No contestant may win more than one prize. Duplicate does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking questions, and if necessary, a second, third or fourth set of tie-breaking questions. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants in accordance with the instructions and moving regulations governing the solutions of such tie-breaking questions.

At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking questions without assistance in the office of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In case of final ties duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of Check Sheets with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the stated closing date, each individual file will be duly judged.

To insure contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of Check Sheets and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest the Boston Record-American will present a special quiz booklet created by Harold Wise, author of the famous quiz volume "Information, Please."

6—By entering this contest understands and agrees to abide by the spirit of individual effort and merit, to settle by said spirit all ties, the decision of the Boston Record American in all matters affecting the contest, including among others, the qualifications of contestants, their disqualification at any time before or after January 27th, the closing date, if it be deemed necessary, the application of tie-breaking questions, the establishment of time limitations for the filing of answers, the scoring of answers and the withholding of such instructions governing tie-breaking questions as may be sponsored by the officials of the contest. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record American and will not be returned.

7—Contestants who are not signed by name will not be considered. A post office box number will not be considered. Not more than one prize will be awarded to members of any one immediate family. The Boston Record American will not be responsible for losses or damage entries in the contest may be unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American to the contestant.

MATA HARI'S Daughter

MAURICE DEKOBRA and LEYLA GEORGIE

WHILE Brinda was worrying about Dick Malden, that tall and thoughtful young man was pursuing a search of his own.

At first the object of his quest was Lady Gladys; his purpose, to learn whether she or Vaslav had selected the moment for staging the surprise blackout. It might have been a coincidence, but the lights had suddenly gone off at a convenient time for whoever had stabbed Brinda's guardian.

But neither Lady Gladys nor Prince Vaslav was in evidence. After canvassing the ball room and the halls he started for the front door. Lord Mountwyn almost collided with him in the hall.

"Deuced queer!" Dick remarked "I'm going out and have a look around.'

"Useless." His Lordship rejoined. "There's no one out there now, my boy."

"We better have a look," Dick said. "Come on, sir."

As though reluctant, Lord Mountwyn followed him through the door and across the broad veranda and down the steps to the broad sweep of lawn. "Desperate devils!" Dick observed. "Attacking like that. Wonder what they were after!"

Lord Mountwyn shrugged. "Blessed if I know! Think they were Jerries?"

"No doubt of it." Suddenly Dick stopped. Ahead of him, at the side of the great house, he saw two dark figures moving rapidly away and they seemed to be carrying an inert figure between them. Dick's fingers dug into Lord Mountwyn's arm. "Look!" It seemed to Dick that the other trembled.

"Servants, perhaps," said Mountwyn.

"Servants my grandmother! Come on!"

"They may be dangerous," Lord Mountwyn protested. "If they are enemies, undoubtedly they are armed." He held on to Dick's arm. But Dick tore himself away.

"I'll go alone," he cried and was off toward the corner of the house around which the men had disappeared. He heard a motor start.

A FIFTH COLUMNIST?

A car shot away along the driveway, its tail light winking at him. He saw another car standing in the drive, leaped into it and shoved his foot on the starter. There was no response in the motor. Fool! . . . He hadn't switched on the key. He found it, turned it and then the motor started. Dick jammed the car in gear and sent it racing after the rapidly failing light.

The needle of the speedometer swung past the fifty mark, hovered on the sixty, crawled on to seventy and then to eighty. Ahead he could see the dim red light and knew he was gaining on it. They were on the long stretch of straight road leading north toward the moors—a land he had known all his life? . . . every inch of it. He drove surely, worried not at all at his terrific speed. Ahead he knew, there was a sharp turn but there was plenty of time to slow for it. He pressed his foot harder on the throttle, part of his mind puzzled by Lord Mountwyn's strange conduct.

Why had his lordship protested against pursuing these men! Was he in league with the enemy? Dick pushed the thought away as unworthy.

It just couldn't be. Lord Mountwyn was an honored, elderly Englishman; naturally a conservative; nothing in his past merited suspicion. It must be that he was old enough to be cautious. You couldn't blame him for that. After all Colonel Sanderson had been stabbed and one had a right to fear for one's own life.

The red light grew brighter. He could now see the other car clearly and gradually drew up to it, swung to the right and started around. As he came alongside, he yelled: "Hey, you chaps!" And then he knew that was a mistake.

A woman screamed. Brinda! He saw her white face for one brief moment. Then flames stabbed at him and the wind screen went out as though a great fist had hit it. There was another burst of shots and this time the car lurched as they found their mark in the front tire.

Dick tried to hold the car in the road, fought desperately with the wheel, but there was no holding it. It swung to the left into the front of the other car, then careened off into the ditch, rolled over, and he felt himself catapulted out; immediately all went utter black.

Some one was bending over him. A hand was shaking him. "I say," a voice said. "I say old man, are you hurt?"

Dick sat up. He put his head in his hands and shook it gingerly. Then he crawled to his feet. 'Apparently not."

"What happened," The speaker wore the uniform of a constable

Briefly Dick told him, saw the man staring at him in disbelief

"That's what happened," Dick said. "I'm not drunk. We've got to get after them." He fished a little badge out of his pocket, saw the constable's face change.

"Sorry, sir," the constable said. "I've only a bicycle. We'll have to use that."

"They're heading north!" Dick said. "Probably got a hideaway somewhere around here. Their car is smashed up a bit. I think one of the head lamps went out. Sure of it, in fact. Won't be hard to trace.'

The constable found his bicycle straddled it. "On the bars,' the constable said. "Not dignified for a gentleman but it's all I have, sir.

Dick grinned. "It's a noble equipage," he said and perched himself on the bars.

In this slow fashion they moved north along the road. After a while they saw a figure trudging along in the darkness and they hailed him. He stopped and peered at them curiously, leaning on his shotgun.

"Seen a car with one light?" Dick asked.

"I have that," the man said. "Not a quarter of an hour ago. Turned in the lane yonder."

"Why the gun?" Dick asked.

"Looking for parachutists. I'm Squire May. Every night I go out and look for the blighters. My duty, sir."

"We can use you," Dick said and quickly told his story.

THE SPY CENTER

"Ah!" nodded the squire and he smiled fiercely, jamming his gun under his arm. "Lead on, MacDuff! Let me at them! A woman, you say? The dirty rogues!"

"We'll leave that bicycle," said Dick. They dismounted and trudged toward the lane half a mile away. When they reached it, the squire whispered: "There's a house a quarter of a mile yonder. That must be it."

Quietly they moved forward and presently saw the house standing amid the trees. The fog had lifted a little, a wafer of moon shedding a pale light on the dark and sinister scene. They crept toward it, then Dick stopped and held up his hand in caution.

"A guard!" he whispered. "I'll get him."

Crouching low, Dick kept in the cover of the trees, creeping toward the lone figure standing at the spot where a driveway led from the lane. He made his way around behind the man, dropped down and crawled inch by inch toward him. Once the man turned and Dick lay still, trying not to breathe, expecting every moment to hear a shout. Then the man turned again and Dick crawled closer. He raised [illegible] squeeze [illegible] finger [illegible] felt it collide with the other, both went down. Then the constable and Squire May were beside him and the three of them were pummeling the prostrate guard.

"That does for him," the Squire said. "He'll be asleep for a little while." He considered the man and tapped him lightly for good measure with the butt of his heavy, double-barrelled shotgun.

Dick stooped and picked up the guard's weapon. "A sub-machine gun!" he observed gleefully. "That lessens the odds. We've a chance now."

"Aye," the squire said. "We're a match for ten of them." He patted his shotgun lovingly. The constable, however, looked dubious.

Shoving his revolver into the constable's hand, Dick cautioned, "We've got to be careful. The girl's in there and we can't risk her life. I'll go round back and get in some way. You watch the front. Give me five minutes! Then fire at the place."

"Right," the Squire said. "Get going, my lad." He was grinning happily.

DICK ATTACKS

Dick slid off into the pale darkness of the woods and around the house, the machine gun cradled in his arm. It gave him a fine superior feeling. At the back he found a trellis leading to the upper windows. That was it. Up the trellis and in. You had an advantage being upstairs. The blighters were probably down below and you could let them have it down a stair well. He swung his strong lithe body up, holding the gun firmly and presently he was clambering through a window and making his way softly down the hall.

He heard the sputter of the wireless set. Then a figure rose suddenly and fired at him point blank.

This was the shot that Brinda, listening in the walled-up shaft of the disused dumb-waiter, heard.

Dick Malden went into action with the captured tommy-gun. Flame lanced at him from the wireless room, and a bullet sang so close by his ear that he felt its scorch

He was horribly afraid Brinda might be in the line of fire, but there was nothing to do except shoot it out.

Squire May's shotgun loomed close beside him

"Look out!" the Squire shouted. "One of 'em's getting away!"

A man on the floor fired at Dick from a half-reclining position Dick let him have a burst from the tommy-gun. The Nazi collapsed and lay still.

Malden peered into the room looking for Brinda. He saw a figure curiously crouched, the hand drawn back. Dick shot fast, aiming low, then threw himself prone, just as the hand-grenade exploded There was nothing much left of the man who had been about to throw it

"Help!" called a voice. "I'm hurt bad!"

It was the constable. A fragment of the grenade had struck him, but he did not sound like a dying man

"Let's have your flashlight!" Dick ordered Crouching he flashed it inside the room. The place was a shambles. Beside the smashed wireless set lay all that remained of the [illegible] Near the door was another man quite dead [illegible] Dick looked around for the Squire, then remembered he had said something about a man getting away.

He returned to the constable. The grenade fragment had richocheted before hitting him, and his only injury was a slight scalp wound.

"You're all right, man," he said. "Go back and look after our prisoner."

"Will Hi get casualty pay for this? the constable wanted to know.

"You'll get a kick in the pants if you don't snap into it!" Dick advised him not too sternly.

Groaningly, the constable struggled to his feet

What became of the Squire?" Dick asked

"'E went that way—'round the corner of the 'ouse. 'E was 'ot after a big 'un'"

Dick hastened in the direction indicated

The spy who had got away was the chief of Brinda's captors. He was the one who had insisted throughout that the sensible thing to do was to kill her immediately. He was also the one who had locked her in the abandoned kitchen.

When the firing started, he emptied his automatic, then leaped out a window, and dashed toward Brinda's prison. He had a start on the Squire, and was safely inside before that doughty 'chutist hunter hove into view

Locking the door behind him, the spy shoved a fresh clip into his automatic and looked about for Brinda. At the moment, he had no more sinister thought than to use her as a hostage or perhaps as a shield if the occasion arose.

SALE OF BEES NEAR, SAYS AUSTEN LAKE

Former Vice-Pres. Listed as Possible Buyer of Franchise

By AUSTEN LAKE

The long-smouldering sale of the Boston Bees is about to break into licks of flame. Within a week's time an option, presumed to be held by Elmer Ward of Newton, will either be exercised or allowed to expire, and immediately three other prospective purchasers will compete for the purchase. One of these is Albert Powell, retired New Haven coal merchant and former vice-president and controlling stockholder of the Braves during Judge Emil Fuchs' early era.

AUSTEN LAKE

Powell held a conference with C. F. Adams last Thursday in the latter's Milk street office, at which time prices and purchase conditions were discussed. Another meeting was arranged later in the month, hinging on the existing option.

Meanwhile Adams has been ailing and visited a Boston hospital for a physical checkup, from where, today, he issued the following statement to this writer:

"I do not feel at liberty to discuss the sale of my interest in the Bees with anyone at present, but I have advised Mr. Powell that at some later date I will be very glad to meet him again and go over the matter further. Mr. Powell seems to know about baseball clubs, players and policies better than anyone that has hitherto approached me. His interest is personal rather than that of a promoter, of which quite a number have, in the past, attempted to secure options rather than talk business. In such persons I am not the least interested. (Signed) C. F. ADAMS."

What Adams obviously refers to is the I-will-buy-the-Braves type of free advertising, in which actors, politicians and business boosters have reaped columns of unpaid newspaper lineage by the mere suggestion that they might consider the proposition—bait that newsmen sometimes gobble like a sturgeon gulps a flannel hook.

So, from his office in the Radio City Building, President Ford Frick of the National League admitted that there were several, separate syndicate groups waiting to buy the Bees, and said, "I don't want to jeopardize the sale by giving names and dates. But there are three different groups dickering for the club."

Powell told this writer by distance telephone today that he was genuinely interested in acquiring the Bees as a "money-making hobby," having maintained a close contact with major league baseball since, loathfully, he separated with the club in 1926 when he sold his 51 per cent holding to an "unknown" purchaser—a deal engineered by the then-President, Judge Emil Fuchs. At the moment, he said, he was waiting Adams' further invitation to renew discussions.

Powell, remembered by Bostonians as a shunner of the limelight and a sensible operator who was alienated by wild and woolly office manipulations during his era of ownership, refers to the purchaser of his stock as "unknown!" He is sincere! But newsmen who were cognizant of the transaction recall the "unknown" as a part time auditor of Braves' ledgers who remained a shadowy, mysterious, financial figure in the deal until Judge K. M. Landis suddenly appeared in Boston to start investigation.

Landis averred that the money advanced for this purchase, unknown to Powell, had come from a prominent owner of another National League club—a condition which Landis ruled "syndicate baseball" and ordered "out."

It was at that point in 1926-27 that Fuchs induced C. F. Adams to buy the disputed block of stock and become his semi-active partner, a relationship that existed until that fateful period in 1936 when the club's finances toppled into bankruptcy. Adams, to protect his initial investment, then took over majority control. Thus the lineal descent of Adams' connection with the Bees-Braves traces back to Powell's disillusioned withdrawal and "C. F.'s" acquisition of control in self-defense.

It is a serio-tragic history which became a super-headache to Adams. For he later became financial angel and paternal guide to the Suffolk Downs race track, thereby "scandalizing" Commr. Landis, who stepped in again and ordered a divorce between the two sports. Adams obligingly transferred his stock to proxy-pool held by Bob Quinn, current Bees president, whose awkward task it became to operate the cash-poor club on profits received at the gate. Adams, according to his agreement with Landis, remained aloof as possessor of stock he could not vote and of a property he could not direct. Naturally he "wanted out."

That is the situation that exists today and why, before January 1 and possibly by the end of another week, the ownership of the Bees will pass to other hands.

As president of the league, Ford Frick has acted as agent for the sale, dealing directly with prospective purchasers, of which Powell is one. Difficulty has been, though, there have been many "nibblers" and a scattering of genuine buyers, to find one with sufficient reputation, plus cash, to meet Landis' lofty standard.

Whether, when the inevitable purchase is made, the new owner will retain Bob Quinn and Manager Casey Stengel is for the future to determine. Chances are that both will be retained, for at least a year and perhaps indefinitely.

Writer Appointed Cubs' G-M; Wilson or Meyer Seen Pilot

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP)—James T. Gallagher, baseball writer for the Chicago Herald-American, was appointed general manager of the Chicago Cubs today by President Phil K. Wrigley.

The Cub president announced at the same time that Charles (Boots) Weber had resigned as treasurer of the club, and William L. Veeck, son of the late Cub president, had been named to succeed him.

Weber will remain as vice-president to serve in an advisory capacity to Gallagher and Veeck.

NAME MANAGER SOON

Gallagher, a native of Lorain, O., is 36 years old and has been writing baseball since 1933. He attended the University of Notre Dame in 1925 and 1926 and worked on newspapers in Lorain and South Bend, Ind., before coming to Chicago in 1928.

He will join the Cub staff Monday.

Gallagher said a new manager to succeed Gabby Hartnett, whose dismissal was announced yesterday, would be signed before the minor league meetings at Atlanta, Ga., next month.

The appointment of Gallagher and the changes in the positions of Weber and Veeck followed yesterday's surprise announcement that Hartnett' contract would not be renewed.

Hartnett was dismissed after 19 years with the Cubs as catcher and manager. Speculation on the identity of Hartnett's successor revolved around

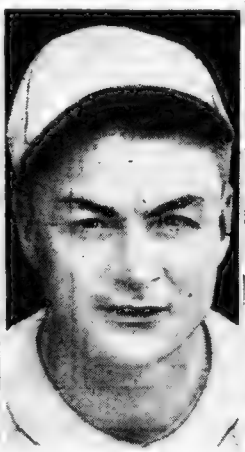
WILSON VISITED HERE

1—The report that Jimmy Wilson, catcher and World Series hero with the Cincinnati Reds, already had reached an agreement with the Cubs following a surprise visit here last week.

2—A remark by Wrigley, who responded to a statement that Wilson would "make a good manager," by saying: "I think so too."

3—The fact that a few days ago Billy Meyer, Kansas City manager, received permission from his employers, the New York Yankees, to negotiate for a major league position. (Yesterday Meyer declined to comment when asked if he was to become manager of the Cubs.

4—Other Wrigley assertions that "there are major and minor leaguers on the list," and "I don't want to be accused of tampering as all the men we've in mind are under contract."



JIMMY WILSON

NEW PILOT BY DEC. 4

Wrigley promised only that the new man would be picked before the winter baseball meetings starting Dec. 4.

As for Hartnett, Wrigley said "we are not blaming Hartnett—he has done everything he could, but we feel it is up to us to try and keep on trying to get the best possible combination of personnel to produce the best possible results."

He said that waivers would be asked on Hartnett, who is listed as a player-manager, and that if there was no response he would be given his unconditional release.

HARTNETT SURPRISED

Hartnett was decidedly surprised at the dismissal from his only major league stand since he came up from Worcester of the Eastern League in 1922.

"I had understood differently . . . but you can't bellyache or cry," he commented. "It comes to almost everybody some time. I only hope the next guy will have a better time of it here."

Hartnett, who succeeded Charley Grimm as Cub manager on July 21, 1938, is tied with Ray Schalk for the record of having caught 100 or more games in each of 12 seasons in the majors. His life time batting average is .297.

Yankees Sign Joe McCarthy For 3 Years

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—The contractural matters between the New York Yankees and Manager Joe McCarthy were closed for another three years today when the club received McCarthy's signed contract to pilot the team through the 1943 season.

Club officials said the terms were the same as in the last contract, which was believed to have called for $30,000 yearly.

McCarthy wrote President Ed Barrow from his Buffalo home that he would not come to New York, but would go directly to the American League meeting in Chicago early in December.

Hoyas Will Pay For This One

10,000 Hoyas to See B. C. Game

3000 Students Follow Unbeaten Eleven Here

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14—Georgetown University's 36-man football squad, conditioned to the minute and calmly confident, will arrive in Boston early tomorrow morning for its all important game with Boston College at Fenway Park Saturday afternoon.

Later in the day two trains loaded down with Georgetown students, alumni members and the crack 60-piece band will report.

[illegible]

Augie Lio remarks, "and until someone knocks us off, which they will have to do on the football field, we won't worry.

This definitely is not a team that will be pushed around by comparative scores and fall tales. They'll have to do it in the ball game—or not at all."

For the first time in the history of the college, the Boston College Athletic Ass'n is virtually assured of a complete sell-out before a game, and when the Eagles meet Saturday at Fenway Park, approximately 40,000 seats should be filled.

The stamping grounds of the Red Sox will house 39,800 persons for a football game, and well over 29,000 tickets have been sold already. The only thing left in the way of tickets are scattered box seats that are selling at $3.30 each.

GEORGETOWN PUFFS ANNOY B. C. PLAYERS

If disposition, mood and frame of mind means anything the Boston College Eagles, which the bettors say will have its tail feathers plucked when mighty Georgetown comes to Fenway Saturday, is ready for a stellar performance.

A visit to the Boston College locker room at the Heights, a conversation with any of the lads who figure to do or die for the honor and glory of the local school offers concrete proof of the fact.

In a quiet way the lads, whom Frank Leahy has piloted to the lip of national fame, are working up to something terrific. The explosion will probably come along about 2 p. m. Saturday.

Essays, dripping with sensationalism and admiration for the mighty Hoyas, which have been batted out by New York and Washington writers and the publicity releases from Georgetown are very liable to boomerang right in the faces of the undefeated, untied visitors come Saturday afternoon.

SUPERLATIVES RESENTED

The printed thoughts and the expressed opinions of the admirers of the Hoyas have been strung up in the Eagle dressing room. The Eagles have read all of them. Saturday they're going to find out, first hand, just how much truth the writings contain.

Characteristic of the quiet but determined attitude of the Boston College boys is some pencilling on a press release from Georgetown which tells of the greatness of Augie Lio, the Hoya All America guard.

LIO SAVED HOYAS

The release begins thusly: "Meet Lio the Lion Hearted." Beneath this heading which introduces an enthusiastic story pertaining to the prowess of Lio an anonymous Eagle has penciled, "Meet George Kerr and Joe Zabilski." The latter suggestion tells more than three pages of copy.

Lio is a great guard. His fine performances during the past three years prove that. (Augie kept the 1939 record of the Hoyas unsullied when he booted a last second placement to give Georgetown a 3-2 decision over Temple early last season)

The Eagles are entirely appreciative of the former East Boston boy's prowess—but they feel that they also are blessed with some pretty fine guard talent in the Messrs. Kerr and Zabilski. The lads will be properly introduced Saturday—and don't bet against the B. C. boys. Tulane won't.

Tripped as they were in their efforts to plaster B. U. with a big score last week, forced by the betting public to assume an underdog role (Georgetown) and goaded on by the "overboard" (on Georgetown) writings of out-of-town authors, the Eagles are in a perfect spot to come up with their best effort of the season.

If Georgetown should (though it probably won't) come to town with a bundle of cockiness under its arm, Boston College will proceed to take the big Hoyas apart, piece by piece.

The Hoyas, coached as they are by canny Jack Hagerty, quite likely won't own any conceit when they step onto Fenway Park's gridiron in full view of the 40,000 capacity house. Under those conditions and on a dry field Boston will be host to one of the best collegiate games of the current campaign. Both teams have "it."

Georgetown Smoker

Guest speakers are expected to include the Rev. John J. Kehoe, S. J., director of athletics; Coach Jack Hagerty and members of the Georgetown squad, the Rev. Maurice Dullea, director of athletics at Boston College, and Coach Frank Leahy.

Among the former Georgetown players who will be in attendance are Dan O'Connor, Tom Moriarty, Charles McCarthy, Andy Gaffey, Fred Murray and Eddie Brooks.

Jockey Harrell Aims For Business Future

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 14 (AP)—The J. Harrell seen on the Pimlico programs these days means a young jockey who probably is the only rider in racing who doesn't want to train horses—ever!

When his riding days are over Clinton Johnny Harrell will return to Miami to go into "business"—what kind he hasn't decided. He broke into racing by way of a business, selling newspapers. He was given his first job by W. A. Crawford and learned the fine points of riding from veteran Frankie Colitletti.

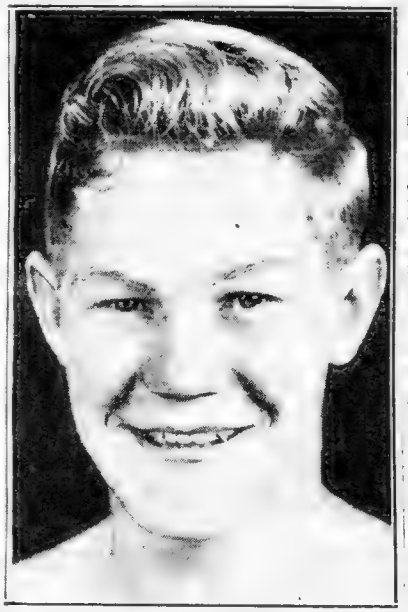
LUCE, BACK BAY K.O. ARTIST, MAKES STUDY OF RING FOES

Irving (Red) Luce of the Back Bay, who won the final bout in the 147-pound class at the All-America tournament at the Arena on Monday night, has only been boxing two months. Luce displayed sensational boxing and punching form as he knocked out Dick Fitzgibbon, a CCC boxer, in one round.



BACK BAY BOXES—Boxing but two months, Irving "Red" Luce, above, really is a student of the game. His ring wisdom and powerful punch carried him into the N. E. All-America boxing finals, but he isn't going to rest on his oars until the night of the finals.

Luce by his victory is qualified to take part in the All-American New England finals that will be held at the Garden on December 9.

Luce, a red headed youngster, is 19 years of age, and lives on St. Botolph st. only a scant distance from the Arena. He has been schooled in the art of boxing by Ernie Sacco of East Boston, a cousin of Jimmy Sacco, a lightweight boxer of a few years back.

TO STUDY OPPONENTS

Irving comes from Hyde Park. He is one of four brothers. He plans to be seeing action at the Arena ringside on next Monday night when the second in the All-America tryout bouts are held. He is anxious to get a line on the boxers he will be called upon to face in the New England finals.

Next Monday night at the Arena the second tryout tourney will be held with competition again offered in 12 classes. There will be bouts in eight divisions for the open boxers, ranging from flyweight to heavyweight, while the novices will have their chance at 118, 135, 160 and heavyweights.

NO POST ENTRIES

All entries must be filed with Tom Kanaly at the Arena, and the management of the All-American Conclave wish to impress upon all competitors that all entries must be made in writing and must be filed before midnight on the Saturday before the show.

No post entries will be accepted, and boxers who wait until Monday night will find to their bitter disappointment that they will be unable to box.

The first entries received for next Monday come from Fort Devens in Rosaire Guilbault, Co. B, QM division in the 135-pound class, and Francis Thibodeau, from the same outfit in the 147 pounds. Guilbault is a former R. I. state champion.

Both boys are in top physical condition due to their army training and are out to win All-America honors in another branch of the fighting forces.

Helmets Only for Sissies, Rangers' Les Patrick Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (INS)—No game produces as many head injuries as hockey, and there is an old saying that no player has reached major hockey league status on the ice until he has at least 30 stitches taken in his face.

Therefore, you naturally would expect to find hockey players in favor of wearing head-protecting helmets.

On the contrary, however, it seems most of them are bitterly opposed to the helmets, and chief among the dissenters is Les Patrick, famous coach of the world champion New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

"Helmets," said the old gray eagle of the ice game today, "are only for sissies. "Some of the players wore them last year but not any of my Rangers or the New York Americans or the Toronto Maple Leafs.

"And I'm glad to see that few are wearing them this year.

There is no more reason for a player to wear a helmet in hockey than there is for a fighter to wear one in the ring.

"Helmets rob the public because the spectators can't tell one helmeted player from another. And they rob a player of his identity and personality, and they serve to build up a defeatist complex.

"Sure, players suffer head injuries. But they are paid professionals, and injuries are part of the gamble they take just as a fighter does. I don't blame baseball players for not wanting to wear them."

Unknown Upsets 'Crusher' Casey

O'Toole took the first and third falls from the ex-champ to shock the onlookers.

O'Toole scored at 15:16 with a cradle hold; Casey got the second fall at 13:21 with a reverse hip-lock and body roll; O'Toole grabbed the third and the match in 5:36 when he threw big Steve out of the ring and Casey failed to climb back in before the 20 count.

Groton Scores 33rd Win Over St. Marks

GROTON, Nov. 14 (INS)—A Groton football team, starring quarterback Hugh Knowlton, today had scored its 33rd win over St. Mark's by a score of 20 to 6, in their 52nd gridiron meeting—the oldest private school feud in the country.

Knowlton, a triple threat, personally accounted for all the Groton touchdowns.

RULES GOVERNING THE FOOTBALL CONTEST

NO. 8

The object of the Daily Record-American Football Contest is to select winners of twenty collegiate football games to be played each Saturday. Anyone may enter the contest excepting employes of the Record-American and their families.

The selections are listed on the chart here which is ready to be filled out by the contestant. Simply place an (X) in the space nearest the name of the team you think will win or if you predict a tie game place the letter (T) in the spaces nearest the names of the tying teams.

Calculate the AVERAGE score of all competing teams, except that for which you predict a tie score. Write winners and losers average score in spaces provided in coupon. Do not write individual scores in spaces or on the coupon. Indicate average scores only by adding scores of all teams and then divide the total by the number of teams competing.

Only ONE solution may be entered by a contestant. All entries must be in the office of the Record-American not later than Midnight Friday the day before the games.

You need not buy a copy of the Record or American to enter this contest. Tracings of the contest form may be made from copies in the public library or in the Record-American office. Such entries will be acceptable and given equal consideration with those clipped from these newspapers.

A prize of $100.00 will be awarded the person whose entries contain all selections correct. If more than one person submits perfect solutions $100.00 will be awarded the tying contestant whose average score tabulations most nearly match with actual average scores on the games. If no perfect list of solutions is entered $50.00 will be awarded to the contestant having the nearest number of selections correct and should two or more contestants tie for this prize the tying contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the award. A prize of $25.00 will be awarded the person submitting the second largest number of correct selections and should two or more contestants tie for this prize, tying contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the prize. Twenty-five awards of $1.00 each will be given the twenty-five contestants whose entries contain in succession, the next largest number of correct solutions and whose average scores most nearly match the actual scores of the games.

Winners of each week's contest will be announced on the Monday nine days after the games. The decision of the judges in all cases shall be final.

Mail all entries to the Record-American Football Contest Editor, P. O. Box 1897, Boston, Mass.

In the event of postponement of any of the games, such games will automatically be excluded from the contest. In the event that the planned date of any game scheduled is changed, then that game is automatically excluded.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

DICK HARLOW told Dick Andrews, Harvard correspondent of this newspaper, that he likes Boston College to win over Georgetown . . . Harlow believes that Charley O'Rourke's brilliant forward passing will give Frank Leahy's club a victory . . . Harlow considers O'Rourke one of the greatest pass tossers in college football.

JOHN CURLEY

Other than for a handful of box seat tickets, which cost $3.30 a copy, John Curley says the Boston College-Georgetown game is a sell-out . . . Proving that Boston is one of the best sports towns in the country when offered the proper attraction . . . The public is anxious to be sitting in when Frank Leahy's undefeated and untied Eagles clash with Jack Hagerty's undefeated and untied Georgetown eleven . . . If Boston College can win over Georgetown, which has a record of 23 straight victories, it will establish itself on a firm national basis . . . Leahy has been gloomy during the past week, as he was during the week before the Tulane game, which ended in such a smashing victory for Boston College.

Leahy will sign an extended contract at the end of the season . . . His present contract has another year to run, but Boston College will give its famous coach a new agreement following the Holy Cross game . . . Leahy has done his part in making the present Boston College season such a huge financial success.

Harvard expects a crowd of 20,000 in the Stadium when it plays Brown on Saturday, despite the tremendous interest in the Boston College-Georgetown clash . . . The Crimson increased its 1940 football standing when it held Penn to a 10 to 10 tie . . . Penn looked like such a cinch to win over Harvard that Boston bookmakers refused to make a price on the game . . . They would not accept wagers on the game.

Al McCoy Opens Training in Boston

AL McCOY DROPPED into Harry Kelley's gym for a light workout as he plans his training for his 15-round heavyweight championship bout with "Bomber" Joe Louis at the Garden on Dec 16 . . . McCoy will go to New York next week, where he will open training quarters at Lou Stillman's gym . . . McCoy will be able to get an abundance of first class sparring partners in New York . . . Al will return here early in December and will finish his training in this city.

McCoy is physically fit as a result of his recent stirring bout with Billy Conn . . . McCoy has been seeking a tussle with Louis for two years and has finally realized his fistic ambition . . . Al has not any fear of the champion and believes he can outpunch him . . . McCoy figures he is a cinch to outbox Louis.

The early rush for reservations indicates that the Louis-McCoy bout, which has been scaled at $2.20, $3.30 and $5.50, will sell out . . . Mike Jacobs wanted to establish an $11 top for the match, but Matchmaker Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. insisted that the best seats be offered at $5.50 . . . Valenti won out and as a result the Garden will be jammed to capacity for the title skirmish.

Louis will train in Boston for two weeks before the bout . . . He will set himself up at Johnny Buckley's gym in Friend st.

All-America Boxers Must Enter Early

TOM KANALY announces that no post entries will be received for the All-America trial bouts that will be conducted at the Arena on next Monday night . . . Entries for next Monday's tournament will close at midnight on Saturday with Tom Kanaly, Arena, St. Botolph st., Boston.

There has been a rush of boxers from every part of New England to compete . . . Included in the list of boxers who will show at the Arena on next Monday night are a group of youngsters from Fort Devens . . . The army camps will develop many new boxers, as was the case during the World War . . . Gene Tunney, Bob Martin and Capt. Bob Roper first displayed ring ability while participating in Army tournaments.

In the days following the war the Navy developed better boxers than the Army . . . Jack Sharkey, Ernie Schaaf, Dick Finnegan, Pal Reed and Eddie Shevlin came from the Navy school of boxing. . . . With thousands of soldiers in camps, and other thousands of sailors at naval bases, it is likely that many new ring stars will be developed . . . The regular life of service men is helpful to the development of star athletes.

There will be bouts in the eight championship classes in the open divisions on Monday night, while there will also be contests in the novice classes . . . The opening set of trial contests last Monday night developed sensational action . . . Irving (Red) Luce, who knocked out Dick Fitzgibbon in the final of the 147-pound novice class, looks like one of the most promising young boxers in New England . . . Luce is a fair boxer, while he tosses leather at a terrific clip.

BABE RUBENSTEIN has proved he is the best race caller in the country during the current Rockingham meeting . . . Even in the last race, when it is usually quite dark, Babe is able to distinguish the colors of the different stables and give an accurate description of the races over the public address system . . . Rubenstein gets his own enthusiasm for racing into his calls.

Zivic Predicts Kayo Victory Over Davis

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—[illegible] will be punch and youth against boxing skill and experience tomorrow night when welterweight champion Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh tackles Al Davis of Brooklyn in a ten-round non-title bout at Madison Square Garden.

Boxing skill and experience will be on the side of Zivic, making his first appearance since whipping Henry Armstrong for the title.

Davis, contender for the welterweight crown, has the punch and youth. The punch is a left hook that has brought him 25 knockout victories in 43 professional fights.

Zivic, who has fought some 80 times, also has a good punch to go with the boxing skill that whipped Armstrong.

The champion has gone out on the limb in predicting he'll finish Davis inside of seven rounds.

2 Golden Boys Spar In Salem Tonight

Plenty of heavy firing is in prospect at the North Street Arena, Salem, tonight when more than 25 fistic-minded youngsters collide in the second elimination of the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament.

The first elimination two weeks ago produced the keenest competition of the season. The classes are 126-pound, 147 open, 147 novice, 160-pound and heavyweight.

Grid Pros to Arrange Playoffs

DAYTON, O., Nov. 14 (AP)—A meeting of the championship contenders in the National Pro football League will be held at Washington next Monday to arrange tentative plans for the annual playoff game scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 8.

At present Washington's Redskins are leading the Eastern division and the Chicago Bears the West, but since they meet each other this Sunday, the situation is shaky.

As a result of this, and the upsets of last week, President Carl Strock announced last night he had invited representatives of the Green Bay Packers, Detroit Lions, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants, in addition to the two current leaders.

GARDELLA, HEIDEN OUT OF BROWN TILT

In the last communique from Soldier's Field, Dick Harlow announced that both George Heiden and Capt. Joe Gardella were definitely lost to the Harvard team for the Brown game.

Brown will enter the Stadium a distinct favorite over the tired and worn out Cantabs. The Bruins are on the up and the Crimson are on the way down. Tuss McLaughry has fashioned a brilliant Brown team this year which has lost only one decision and last Saturday gave the Army their most strenuous workout of the season.

BARNES AT END

Harvard tied Penn, but as a result probably has lost the clash with the Providence team. The loss of Heiden and Gardella is a heavy blow to Dick Harlow's chances. Also, the rest of the team still feels the effects of the grueling contest at Philly.

Bill Barnes will replace Loren MacKinney at left end while Mack shifts to blocking back to take over the duties of injured George Heiden. Bill Brown, who played the entire Penn battle at bucking back, will again fill Gardella's shoes.

BEARS AT PEAK

Barnes, a soph, lacks experience so Harvard will be decidedly weak at a point that formerly was its strongest with MacKinney at the post. Another point against Harvard is that MacKinney has yet to master the defensive maneuvers as blocking back and lacks Heiden's ability to diagnose opponents plays from that position.

Reports from Providence say that the Bruins are at full strength and are gunning for their second straight win over the Crimson. Brown is an Ivy College, and wins over Yale and Harvard make their season a complete success. The Bruins have already ripped Yale and are lying in wait for Harlow's crippled Cantabs.

CRIMSON CLIPPINGS: The Harvard and Ya'e frosh, play their annual game at New Haven on Saturday . . . . Chief Boston's frosh crew will enter the game a decided underdog . . . . The Crimson cubs have one victory, a 20 0 win over weak Andover.

Waltham Gun Club Opens Gate

Prospective participants in the William Randolph Hearst Citizen Marksmanship Competition to be held throughout the winter months under the sponsorship of the Boston American Record will be pleased to know that the Waltham Rifle and Revolver Club, one of the better known shooting organizations of New England, is opening its range to many new members.

Inasmuch as scores of individuals throughout New England have written to the rifle editor of the American-Record asking how they may join such a club and what clubs are open to membership, this Waltham announcement is of particular import.

TO BOOST MEMBERSHIP

Sec. Charles Blackman, 106 Prospect st., Waltham, informs us that this club, organized some 12 years, has been limited in the past to 30 members. He says it has now been decided upon to admit 20 new members, thereby boosting the enrollment to 50 members.

Those marksmen, either tyros or experts, who would like to consider the Waltham Club, may obtain applications for membership and more intimate details by writing Secretary Blackman.

Waltham has an indoor range on 37 Lexington st., Waltham, one most modern, with six separate firing points, and uses 75-foot N. R. A. rifle targets, 50-foot N. R. A. pistol targets and the 45-foot New England Police Revolver League targets. All the target racks are illuminated by new Fluorescent lamps and each firing point can be used for either rifle or pistol shooting.

OUTDOOR RANGE IN WESTON

The outdoor range has the following firing points: 50-foot to 100-yards rifle ranges; and 45-foot to 50-yard pistol ranges.

It would be well for those shooters who hope to become members of organized clubs in time for the Hearst Citizen Shoot, to make such contacts as necessary at once.

Should there be any other New England rifle clubs open to new memberships, we would be pleased to mention them. Virtually every outstanding club in this part of the country will be liberally represented in the Hearst competition.

Girls Too Tough, Yale Hockey Team Challenges Harvard

Yale challenges Harvard!

The Elis' field hockey team has heard that the Crimson field stick wielders lost a 1-0 decision to Wheaton College for Girls.

The Yale challenge to the Cantabs reads:

"Heard about your game with Wheaton. It coincides with games we have been playing with girls' schools around New Haven. Our team thinks that it would be pretty good sport to have a field hockey hack-away. We have enough sticks. Bring 11 players Friday afternoon."

Franny Simpson, the Harvard captain, answered:

"We suffered a humiliating defeat from Wheaton, but we think we can beat Yale. We'll be there."

Zeno, Dorrington Back With Purple

WORCESTER, Nov. 14 (INS)—Hopes of Holy Cross Coach Joe Sheeketski were raised today with news that Joe Zeno and Paul Dorrington would be ready for the Temple game Saturday.

They were unable to play against Mississippi last week because of injuries.

Travers Combines Farming With Golf

MERIDEN, Ct., Nov. 14 (AP)—Twenty-five years ago, Jerry Travers, one of the greatest golfers of them all, fashioned together an exciting 72-hole score of 297 over Baltusrol's tricky course at Springfield, N. J., and captured the United States open championship—a triumph that climaxed a brilliant career on the links.

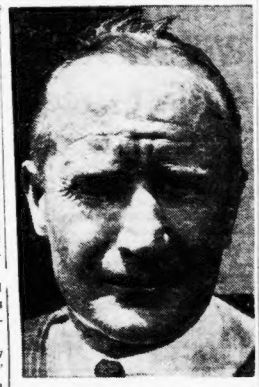
That "gave me my biggest thrill."

Slim, wiry, the 53-year-old Traver has purchased a modest farm on the Meriden-Wallingford town line and has signed up as professional at the Pleasant View Golf Club, a privately-owned nine-hole course down the dirt road some half-mile away.

"I'm a golfer-farmer now."

"Life begins in the fifties."

Although he rates the winning of the U. S. Open his "greatest thrill" the record books show that he captured the national amateur crown four times between 1907 and 191", a feat surpassed only by the great Bobby Jones of Atlanta, Ga.



JERRY TRAVERS

MASTER OF PUTTING

Travers is noted for having had an excellent command of golf's various intricacies, especially putting.

In his prime, he had what is now so aptly described as "ice water" in his veins. He was best when the chips were down or as the attractive Mrs. Travers ("we were childhood sweethearts") phrases it:

"I never saw Jerry miss a putt when it was important, and many was the 30-footer he made."

Seated on the porch of his white farm house, Travers' features light up as he talks about his new career.

"Im setting aside a portion of the land for a golf-driving range where I can give lessons. My spare moments will be devoted to asisting the best of the family" (three children, all in their 'teens, Junior, David and Geraldine) in raising crops.

NEIGHBORS OF "TEDDY"

As a boy, Travers was a neighbor of the late President Theodore Roosevelt ("our families were close friends") at Oyster Bay, L. I., where Jerry first played the game that was to bring him fame.

The turning point in his career was a meeting with Alex Smith, the brilliant professional, who "taught me all I know."

In 1914, the year Francis Ouimet of Boston, beat Travers for the National Amateur in the final, Jerry went "partners" on a seat in the New York Cotton Exchange, which he held for 18 years until the depression caught up with him in 1932.

It was then that he became a golf professional. He opened an indoor school down on Wall st., New York; designed golf clubs and spent a season as pro at the Woods Hole, Mass., Golf Club, earning enough money to "buy a farm and combine it somehow with golf."

PASSED UP MONEY

Although reluctant to gaze back into the past, Travers regrets that he "didn't turn pro in 1915 after winning the National Open and capitalize on the scores of opportunities that were offered me. I probably would have been better off, at least financially, today.

"You see, as a very strict amateur who abided by the strictest interpretation of the rules, I didn't earn a cent while playing.

His victory in the national open, when he beat Tom McNamara by a stroke, led him to decide to go to England and compete over there—the first American-born amateur, he claims, to have done this.

While on British soil ("I paid my own way") he met Lord Northcliffe and discussed with him the benefits that could arrive out of an exchange of "visits" of leading golfers from both nations.

NEEDED MORE SKILL THEN

The "invasion" of English golfers here and our golfers over there gained favor with the passing of the years and became commonplace.

Travers has no serious intention at this time to return to the tournament wars, which son Junior claims is a "real break" for the Nelsons, Sneads, Shutes, Guldahls, Littles, yes, the Sarazens, and other headliners, since, as he exclaims:

"Dad could lick them even with his old clubs."

Travers' blue eyes merely twinkle in amusement at such outbursts, but he does feel that golf today is "simple" compared with its counterpart of not too long ago.

"Sure," he says, "the scores are better now, but the reasons are the perfectly groomed courses and the vastly improved tools—clubs and balls. The game I played required real skill and brains."

Welsh Replaces Dutcher for Penn

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14 (INS)—Jack Welsh, a soph, was Coach George Munger's selection today as a replacement for injured Johnny Dutcher at wingback when Penn stacks up against a determined Army eleven Saturday. Bob Brundage, a 190-pound soph, was promoted to the second string berth.

Stevens Makes Two Changes in Lineup

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (INS)—Striving for a strong defense, Coach Mal Stevens of N. Y. U. effected two lineup changes today by way of preparing for Penn State Saturday.

Harry Petereit, regular right tackle, was moved to right end, and Irving Hyman, regular left tackle, was named reserve center.

Texas Aggies Best Bet to Play Stanford in Bowl; B. C. on List

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14 (AP)—Fourteen blondes and a redhead couldn't drag confirmation of this from Stanford, but—if the Indians whip Oregon State in their football game Saturday they probably will begin beating the bush immediately for a standout Rose Bowl opponent.

Alfred R. Masters wouldn't say "yes," but he didn't say "no," either. As athletic boss of Stanford football he will be charged with the duty of rounding up the other half of the New Year's Day classic. And all that stands in the way is for his team to flash the "go" signal with a win

BEARS GETTING HOT

Stanford, if it knocks off Oregon State, has another slambang of rival waiting 'round the corner. It is California. The Bears have been getting tougher than their namesake every week. At their worst they'll give Stanford a rousing battle. It is one of those games for blood.

Facts pyramid to this conclusion: With a win over Oregon State, Stanford could lose to California and still finish in at least a tie for the Coast Conference title. Washington, with a sweep of its remaining three games, could tie Stanford.

The ten conference members vote the Western team into the Rose Bowl. Stanford punched out a 20-10 victory over Washington last week. In case of a tie Stanford would expect, with confidence, the call over a team it already had defeated.

B. C. ON LIST

Official wells are dry on the subject of an opponent "if and when" Stanford lands in the Rose Bowl. The speculative field, however, appears ready for a boom. At present there are Cornell, Minnesota, Texas A. & M., Tennessee, Notre Dame, Boston College and Georgetown among the bigger name colleges with unblemished records.

Boston College and Georgetown meet this week-end and one or both may be eliminated, depending on a tie. There are indications either would be a second choice, anyhow.

Notre Dame, Cornell and Minnesota are opposed to post-season contests, the first two by tradition and the latter because the Big Ten rules prohibit it. Also there is the slight matter of completing the season undefeated.

TEXAS A. & M. BEST BET

This leaves the Texas Aggies and Tennessee, with two and three games respectively to play by both hot favorites to finish with perfect records. Tennessee lost to Southern California in the Rose Bowler, which may or may not be an influencing factor in the ultimate selection.

Texas A. & M., by this sketchy process of elimination, becomes the best bet to wind up in the big bowl if Stanford gains no right to move into football's first producing gold mine.

The Texans, if they come through this time, will be crowned Southwest Conference champions the second successive time. Last New Year's Day they barruped good Tulane team into submission in the Sugar Bowl.

Hershy, Ruddy Will See Action Against Green

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 14 (INS)—Indications today were that Cornell will have Kirk Hershey and Mike Ruddy available for action at left end and at blocking back respectively for Saturday's meeting with Dartmouth. The squad will depart after today's drill.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 14 (INS)—A thoroughly determined Dartmouth eleven went through the final paces today for Saturday's battle with Cornell. The team practiced yesterday on a field that was a quagmire through rain and snow until darkness made it impossible to see the ball.

REGINALD MASON

That superb English actor who has appeared in 25 New York productions, commencing in 1908, says: "Krueger Cream Ale is as English as steak and kidney pie. It has the delicious tang of England's best."

"As English as Steak & Kidney Pie"

IF YOU have ever tasted genuine English ale, you will know what we mean when we say—Krueger Cream Ale is brewed in the English manner.

That hearty taste can only come from ale brewed in a separate ale-house—the way the finest ale is brewed in England. On these chilly Fall days, enjoy the nippy tang of Krueger Cream Ale... and look for that little K-man on the bottle.

Park Title Up Sunday

Mattapan Merchants and St. Alphonsus Ass'n of Roxbury, divisional winners in the Boston Park League, will play for the city football title at Fenway Park Sunday afternoon. The kickoff will be made at 2:15 o'clock.

More than 40,000 seats will be available. There will be no admission charge of any kind. General Manager Eddie Collins has donated the entire Fenway plant for the second successive year so it will be possible for all Park League followers to have a seat.

A re-enactment of the 1936 championship game is possible. Then Mattapan was favored to beat the Dolan Club, but Ray Benkert scored two touchdowns late in the game to beat the Merchants.

Benkert wears a St. Alphonsus uniform this year and has been one of the main reasons for the climb of the Saints to the pinnacle.

Dick Mason is another former Dolan Club and Holy Name player whose bruising blocking has paved the way for many a Benkert gain this year. Mason will be at the other halfback post for the Saints.

Fog-Bound Pics Held to 1-1 Tie

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14 (AP)—Boston's Olympics and the Baltimore Orioles battled to a 1-1 overtime tie in the opening game of the Eastern Hockey League season.

Five Boston players, flying here for the game, were fogbound long enough to keep them out of play until the third period.

Their mates, however, battled the Orioles and went into the final session trailing 0-1 on Chick Webb's goal on a pass from George Grigor in the first period.

Early in the third, Guibord took an assist from Sullivan and knotted the count where it remained through the rest of that period and the extra session.

Boston Goalie Vic Polich made 14 saves, several of them spectacular, in the third period as the Orioles ganged the net in an attempt to break the deadlock.

78,205 Tickets Sold For Cornell-Penn

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14 (AP)—A complete sell-out of tickets for the University of Pennsylvania-Cornell football game at Franklin Field Nov. 23 was announced by Penn officials today.

A total of 78,205 tickets have been sold, including 7500 for specially erected bleachers. This is the first Franklin Field sell-out since the Notre Dame-Penn game in 1930.

Tiny Terrier Guard Team's Real Ironman

New England's outstanding college football player, for size and weight, Charlie "Chuck" Cremens, Boston University's tiny guard, will have added duties thrust on him this coming Saturday against Springfield.

Cremens who weighs only 159 pounds and has been at right guard all fall for virtually 60 minutes of every game will move over to left guard and lead most of the offensive plays.

Ever since Skoropowski was hurt in the second game of the season, Coach Pat Hanley has been unable to find a satisfactory running guard and for that reason is giving Cremens this added duty.

The shift will make the mity Cambridge lineman about the busiest man on the field. For in addition to leading plays on offense, he will captain the team while Jim McDonald is on the sidelines, call the defensive signals, move out of the line on a five-man defense and play his usual 60 minutes.

In the six games the Terriers have played to date, Cremens has gone 60 minutes in three of them and 58 in the other three without having a single time out called.

Without a doubt Cremens has been the most valuable player on the entire Terrier squad this season and this 159-pound guard will leave a gap that's going to be hard to fill when he is graduated this June.

Behind Goal Posts

With the dropkick going into discard in favor of the easier and surer place kick, the old masters of the difficult dropkicking art stands out like beacons . . . Notre Dame's George Gipp kicked one 62 yards against Western Reserve in 1916 and Pat O'Dea of Wisconsin duplicated the feat on Northwestern way back in '98 . . . during his Bucknell College days baseball star Christy Mathewsson dropkicked a 48-yard field goal against the Army and Gene Vidal of the Cadets booted a 50-yarder in the 1916 Notre Dame game . . . B. C.'s Fitzpatrick kicked a 45-yard three pointer against Yale in 1919 . . . Ralph Hewitt's 53-yarder for Columbia versus Cornell in '30 is the best in recent years. WHIT CUSHING.

The most popular fall sport is football. 50,000,000 spectators pay out $75,000,000 to see their favorite teams in action.
